I remain immensely grateful to Uwe for putting this detailed discography together, as it hopefully answers most of the questions I get asked about my back catalogue. I've made a lot of records, and perhaps too many that aren't very good, but my philosophy has always been to learn from your mistakes and often I can't really judge the quality of something or where it fits into my catalogue until it's been released into the world. I also know what it's like to be a collector - sometimes the mistakes of an artist are just as interesting as the successes that made you like them in the first place. I have many mediocre or downright bad albums by artists I love, and here's the thing: I treasure them just as much.

For the record my favourite albums amongst those I have made are Porcupine Tree's In Absentia and Fear of a Blank Planet, No-Man's Together We're Stranger, Bass Communion's Ghosts on Magnetic Tape, the Storm Corrosion album, and at least 3 of my solo records; Insurgentes, Hand.Cannot.Erase. and The Future Bites. Many of these I like because they were unexpected, new aspects to my music which confronted expectations (including my own), not simply catered for them. If I'm not changing and making different kinds of records I can't see the point of doing it at all.

One question I get asked a lot is whether such and such an album will be reissued. I'm actually at a stage in my career where it could easily become a full time job just to curate the back catalogue, but my prime commitment remains to making new music, which means the time I can spend preparing reissues is limited. I feel I'm fighting a losing battle to keep some of it in print (or some I just don't want to), and in these pages you will find many obscure "corners" to my discography. But since I originally wrote a foreword for the first edition of this discography nearly 20 years ago, the music business has changed beyond all recognition, such that there's a good chance you can find all the music, no matter how obscure, online somewhere.

In the meantime I continue to make new records, mainly because I don't know how to do anything else. I'm slowing down a little, or at least I think quality is more important to me now than quantity. Still I apologise to Uwe for the fact that by the time you read this the discography will probably already need updating again!

Preface

Some words on the 11st Edition

*Hey brother, happy returns, it's been a while now
I bet you thought that I was dead
But I'm still here, nothing has changed*

*Hey brother, I'd love to tell you I've been busy
But that would be a lie
Cos the truth is the years just past like trains
I wave but they don't slow down*

Steven Wilson – Happy Return (from Hand. Cannot. Erase.)

Has it really been 20 years since I started working on the first edition of my "The Complete Steven Wilson Discography"? And has it actually been 6 years since the last issue appeared? Where has the time gone?

Since the 10th edition I have received many emails with the request to create a new edition of the discography. My answer so far has been that it is unlikely that I will ever revise the discography again. There were many reasons for this.

When I started to work on my SW discography, it should also add something unique to my Porcupine Tree website ☛ Voyage PT - This Trip Is Really Necessary compared to other PT fansites in order to attract more visitors. But such band websites are, in times when musicians are directly in contact with their fanbase via Facebook, Instagram and other social media platforms, quite out of date. As a result the right to exist for "Voyage PT" is mainly limited to the archiving function for Porcupine Tree nostalgics like me, for whom PT formed the musical Helio center for almost 20 years and as a download source for my SW discography.

Another reason was that I had a lot of respect for the effort that such a revision inevitably entails after more than 6 years. In the meantime, with the ☛ Steven Wilson Footprints trilogy by Peter M Sieker and Guy M Tkach, there is an phenomenal alternative that can hardly be surpassed in terms of richness of detail. I can only strongly recommend anyone who wants to dive deeper in Steven Wilson's music to visit their website and get the ebooks . It's unbelievable what the two of them have achieved!

So why a new edition after all? On the one hand, the many emails I received have made me rethink, because for many people (including myself) the SW discography is an affair of the heart. On the other hand, there was the Corona lockdown, which gave me the time to revise it. But I didn't just want to add new releases to the existing SW discography, I wanted to "modernize" it and spice it up in terms of design. However, if I had known beforehand how much time I had to invest to revise the document and often bring Word (and myself) to the edge of despair, I would probably never have started the project 😊.

I hope you like the new design and all the new feature that I have added (see section "What's New with the 11th Edition"). In your opinion, was it worth the effort of over 500 hours I spent on it? In any case, I would be happy if you would give me a corresponding feedback, positive / constructive criticism, additions, bug fixes and of course ideas for further new features.

Sorry it took so long

Special thanks to:

Peter M Sieker for his ongoing support, for always answering all my inquiries immediately, making all his lists and records available to me, always encouraging me to continue with the SW discography, Peter without you there probably would not have been a new version!

Guy M Tkach and Peter M Sieker for putting together the "Steven Wilson Footprints" trilogy, this is inexhaustible source of first class information for all SW manics. I don't think there is or ever will be a similar series with this level of detail and dedication for any other musician or artist

Thanks to everyone who uploaded all the information, cover scans, tracklists, details etc. to discogs.com, musik-sammler.de and Wikipedia. Without these websites, the SW discography would not be possible

Iconmonstr for providing such nice looking icons for free

Nationalflaggen.de for providing flags for more than 500 country free for private usage

And last but not least my wife Geli, who allowed me to spend most of my spare time during the last 7 months to work on the SW discography and who was at my side with help and advice on questions about any design topics.

Some words on the 1st Edition

*I'm a collector, I collect anything I find
I never throw anything away that's mine
And I'd collect you too if I was given half a chance
And trap you under the glass and add my autograph
I catalog, I preserve and I index
And file you into my collectible Rolodex
I keep the rubbish what other people give away
And keep all of the pieces in a metal tray*

*Hoard, collect, file, index
Catalog, preserve, amass, index*

Steven Wilson – Index (from Grace For Drowning)

My first encounter with the musician Steven Wilson was back in 1997, when I started to explore the internet and found out that there is still a so called "Progressive Rock Scene". Being a long term fan of the established acts like Pink Floyd, Genesis and Marillion, I did not realise that there were still a lot of bands out there that addressed my musical bias. One of the websites I found quite useful at that time was the 'Gibraltar Encyclopaedia of Progressive Rock' (GEPR) and one day a link from the Pink Floyd entry directed me to a group called Porcupine Tree, a name I had never heard before. A review compared 'The Sky Moves Sideways' (TSMS) with Pink Floyd's 'Wish You Were Here', one of my all-time favourite records at that time. With hindsight I have to state that this comparison is in my humble opinion rather inaccurate, as it creates misleading expectations in the listener. But I have to be very grateful to the reviewer, because otherwise I would not have bought any Porcupine Tree records at this time. ☺

So I ordered TSMS via mail order, but before the CD arrived I found 'Signify' at a local record shop and was so fascinated by the "package" (cover artwork, quality of music, atmosphere, lyrics, samples, etc.; so perhaps the comparison to Pink Floyd might be alright in this context), that I bought the album at once.

'Signify' was my introduction to the world of Porcupine Tree and Steven Wilson, but although I liked it very much, it was not until 'Stupid Dream' that I could call myself a big PT fan. After seeing the band live at their very first German gig in Munich 1999 (a great performance in front of a "crowd" of 50 people!) I belatedly realised that this was something special, and besides starting to collect all of the PT releases, I also began to explore the various SW side-projects.

When 'Lightbulb Sun' was released, I started to think about building a German website for the group. On the one hand I wanted to make myself familiar with web design and HTML, on the other hand, as I saw within my circle of friends, I realised that the music of PT/SW also appealed to a wide variety of people provided they got a chance to hear it. So at the end of March 2001 my PT site called 'Voyage PT - This Trip IS Really Necessary!' went online and got about 100 000 hits in the first year! About 3 months later I founded the German mailing list also with the name 'voyage-pt' on Yahoo! Groups, in order to announce updates to my PT site and also to discuss all PT/SW related stuff.

One of the things that first attracted my attention when I looked at the PT/SW fan base, was that it contains a huge amount of record collectors (including myself). So one day I thought that it would be great to have a document which listed all SW related albums. It took nearly one year from the first draft to the first edition, but finally I'm ready to release it.

I hope you like the results and I would be grateful if you could send me any notes, corrections and suggestions to improve this discography. Also you will notice that this document contains the word "complete" in its title, so if you know of any SW related record which is not listed in this document, please send me all the details and a scan of the cover, so that I can add an entry for it.

Uwe Häberle, October 2002

Special thanks to:

Steven Wilson for pointing me to various errors and typos, for his help to clarify many facts and of course for making such great and diverse music ☺; Ray Badowski for all his info on some very rare promo stuff, Wouter Bessels for opening his archive, Motti Gini for his support, Joost van Ginkel for his ongoing collaboration, Marcel Halbeisen (Fe/2) for his advice and encouragement; Phil Harwood for still sending my cover scans, Hannes Ludwig for still finding a bunch of spelling mistakes, Geoff Proudley for the details of SW's collaboration with Coltsfoot; Claudia Richter for being Claudi, Guy Tkach for still sending me a huge amount of information along with cover scans, Luis Torregrosa for his continuing support, Peter-Michael Sieker (PMS) for his extensive contributions of various cover artwork and detailed information about the obscurest releases, without Peter, this project would not be possible(!); David Schroeder for sending me a lot of promo artwork and last but not least my family Geli, Lisa and Philipp for giving me the time to realize this huge and time consuming project.

Thanks to:

Christopher Arabatzis, Andy Ashton, Brian Asquith, Dany Babin, Peter Blight, Thomas Buch, Alex Cagli, James Clark, Adam Corlett, Jørgen Husted, Kaz Kato, Derek Perduta, Michael Piper, Bernd Sievers (BSV), Bert ter Steege, Christiano Trevisan, Thanasis Tsilderikis, Rémy Turpault and all other SW maniacs that I have forgot to mention, sorry!

What's New with the 11th Edition?

Of course the most obvious changes I did beginning with V11 of my SW discography is the new design. I added icons instead of text in front of each entry to describe visually the separate information on each release. Thanks to Iconmonstr, which provides free icons, I hope I could find symbols that speak for themselves. If not you'll find a description for each icon under the section "Key To The Symbols".

Also I rearranged, deleted and added some sections. Due to these changes, the Revision History for older version is not 100% accurate anymore. The regular releases are now in a separate section (Albums /EP / Singles), instead under the band name. As a result, all publications are now on the same heading level and appear indented in the same column position in the table of contents. Also the new "Books" section and the "Rumours/Misinformation" section are listed in the new Appendix section, as these releases are not by SW (but nevertheless IMHO belong to the SW discography) and to stick to the above described heading level for each particular entry.

I hope the new structure is more consistent and logical now.

Other new features are:

Link to Wikipedia: For regular releases like albums, EPs and singles I added a link to the corresponding section of the English Wikipedia, if available. Just click on the logo to get more background information on a particular release.

Link to Discogs.com: As it is nearly impossible to list all different releases of a particular album, I added a link to Discogs.com. For albums I always linked to the master entry of an album, if available. So even if my SW discography is out-dated (which it is after the day of publication), you'll find new reissues along with the catalogue numbers via Discogs.com. For promos, test pressings I always link to the specific entry, not the master entry, as I included all these specific releases on their own. If I couldn't find an entry on Discogs.com, I link to Musik-Sammler.de, if available, instead.

Link to YouTube: For video releases I tried to link to the video on YouTube, if available. The URL I used for the YouTube logo is the link you'll receive if you right click on a video and select "Copy Video-URL". I only included official videos from SW or labels (so no lyric videos by fans, or live videos filmed with mobile phones), also TV ads, unboxing videos or other snippets are not listed.

Chart position(s): For regular album releases I added the chart positions only, if SW was directly involved. That means, for most albums which were remixed by SW, the chart position is not shown, as the original album entered the charts, when it was released and not the reissue / remixed album. The chart positions are taken mainly from Wikipedia, ACHARTS.co, UK Top 100, German Top 100 and Dutch Charts. I listed (if available) the best six placements, but always included the UK and US placements if available, as these are the most important markets, even if the ranking in these two countries are not within the best six positions.

Link to home page: For books I added a link to the home page of the author(s) or publisher. I strongly encourage you to order directly from these pages, instead of big retailers like Amazon etc. The effort that the authors and publishers have put into the publications, as well as the usually small editions, usually only result in small profits, which should not be reduced by further fees.

Digital releases: For digital releases, I tried to include the links to the releases on Burning Shed, Bandcamp, Amazon Music and Apple Music. I have not added streaming platforms, only platforms, where you can buy the digital releases. One exception is Apple Music (instead of iTunes), as posting links to Apple Music is much easier (and opens the corresponding entry in your standard browser). Usually you can then open the link to iTunes from there. Please note: I will not earn any money, if you click on links to Amazon Music or Apple Music (same for Burning Shed and Bandcamp), as I'm not affiliated in any form with them. I just listed them as the two sources are the most popular sites to download music. If you prefer other providers, please feel free to use them instead.

New order for releases in the "Credits/Appearances/Remixes" section: In older publications of the SW discography, I have sorted the publications in strict chronological order. Beginning with V11 I created a separate section for each artist / band and list the corresponding releases chronologically within each section. So hopefully you will find SW's contributions much faster now for your favorite artists / bands by using the bookmark feature of your PDF viewer.

More details on SW's contributions on remixes: Beginning with V11 I tried to add more details on the various audio formats and SW contributions (e.g. guest playing, etc.) to each entry in the "Credits/Appearances/Remixes" section

Altamont

In 1983, at the age of 15, Steven recorded 'Prayer For The Soul', half solo and half with Si Vockings on keyboard. Credited to Altamont, it was released on the Acid Tapes label run by future Imaginary Records boss, Alan Duffy, and featured five Wilson compositions, 'Altamont', 'Watching Statues', 'Telltale Heart', 'Split Image' and 'Prayer For The Soul'.

A shared interest in Syd Barrett had prompted Duffy to send Steven a batch of lyrics for which he could provide musical backing; and 'Prayer For The Soul' featured lyrics that would later appear on Porcupine Tree's 'This Long Silence' and 'It Will Rain For A Million Years', though in a very different context. The tape was available until quite recently but has been deleted at Steven's request.

SW:

"Having these tapes in circulation is a bit like a painter having his nursery school paint blots on display, but I guess it's testament to that fact that the Porcupine Tree fan base is growing all the time that these formative demo tapes are in circulation."

[Source: SW interview in Voyage 35 magazine]

Note by SW:

"The only released Altamont material – the 'Prayer For The Soul' tape – is not really Altamont at all, more a series of tracks from different sources I complied under that name (two with Alan Duffy at a studio in Manchester, and my first two attempts at multitrack recording at home). Altamont was nothing to do with any of that – it was actually a duo of myself and Si Vockings that recorded hours of live electronic music straight down onto cassette from 1983-85. We were very influenced by TD and KS.

Altamont was Steven Wilson and Simon Vockings. It existed between 1983-84. SW was 15/16 years old at that time. All of the music was improvised live onto cassette tapes using primitive analogue synthesizers and a home made echo machine.

All titles written and performed by Steven Wilson and Simon Vockings.

Photography and graphic design by Carl Glover for Aleph

Recordings dates: 7-8-83 / 26-6-83 / 4-84

This LP is limited to 300 copies.

This selection of songs comes from a letter Steven - while using the band name Shagrat - wrote to tape distributors sometime in 1983. In 2019 he confirmed the recordings of 'Birth Sequence' and 'Flood Sequence' as well as 'Xenephon', 'Pegasus' and 'Procession Of The Equinoxes'. As he could not remember the other song, he said "that some of those might not actually exist. They were just made it look like we had this really long discography."

Amber Dawn

Amber Dawn was the first real band of Steven and was comprised of himself (Guitar, Vocals, Keyboards), Marc Gordon (Drums), Richard Haywood (Bass, Vocals), Bazz Barrett (Guitar, Vocals), and Michel Bull (Keyboards). The band was inspired by the resurgence of Progressive Rock, particularly by Marillion. They recorded a cassette titled 'Ash Ridge' of which only a handful copies were produced for distribution to band members and friends. The cassette was no simple home recording, as Steven recalled, "We went to a proper studio that we managed to blag for half a days."

They eventually disbanded in the summer of 1982 when Richard Haywood (who was three years older than the rest of the band members) left to go to university. It was not long before Richard's part was taken over by Bazz, and a new band 'Karma' emerged from the ashes.

Bass Communion

Bass Communion is the name Steven gives to recordings he has been making since 1994 in a more experimental ambient vein. Most of the pieces are experiments in texture and are generated from samples of actual live performances – hardly any synthesisers are used. Some of it might be called process music, ambient music or electronica. Some of the pieces are accessible, others more difficult.

Bass Communion v Muslimgauze:

In 1996 Steven Wilson wrote to Bryn Jones to express his admiration of Muslimgauze. Subsequently they met and Steven gave Bryn some of his own music, although he suspected that it wouldn't appeal to him. It didn't, but as with all the music that Bryn was exposed to, his natural instinct to rework it into something that did proved irresistible. And so it came to pass that only four days after their meeting Steven received a parcel containing two and a half hours of reconstructions and obliterations of his original music. The new pieces were distorted, grainy, loop-driven tracks, but Steven felt they were too close to Bryn's own music to simply release as a remix album. Instead he decided to use them as the basis for new pieces, and re-edited and overdubbed the tapes, finally returning them to Bryn for approval. So began a period of collaboration by post. Each time Bryn would provide rhythms and each time Steven moulded the raw material only to have Bryn obliterate it again!! Finally in early 1997 the battle was over and an album was complete. For Bass Communion fans the recordings are an opportunity to hear Steven's ambient textures, sonic fluctuations and low-end bass fused with the hard edged ethnic rhythms that were Bryn's trademark.

[Source:  Soleilmoon Recordings]

Note:

Most Bass Communion releases are simply titled 'Bass Communion'. I have included some subtitles like 'I', 'II' or 'Reconstructions and Recycling' to make the differentiation easier.

| 1. Wide Open Killingfeld (Part 2) | 5:52 |
| 2. Wide Open Killingfeld (Part 3) | 13:04 |

All tracks were written by Steven Wilson, except 'Wide Open Killingfeld' written by Steven Wilson/Theo Travis and 'Snakebird' written by Steven Wilson/Mark Poysden.

Recorded at No Man's Land 1998.

Graphic design and photography by Carl Glover.

CD 2 Track 1 is based on soundscapes material provided by Robert Fripp.
CD 2 Track 2 is a collaboration with The Square Root of Sub.

The first edition of this album came with a bonus CD containing a piece based on a Robert Fripp sample and a remix by The Square Root of Sub. The reissue is a single CD, but with the Robert Fripp piece added as a bonus track to the original album, bringing it up to about 72 minutes in length.

The ToneFloat double vinyl edition of Bass Communion II, which collects the six tracks from the original 1999 CD release plus 'Wide Open Killingfeld Part 2' (5:52) and 'Wide Open Killingfeld Part 3' (13:04), exclusive to this release. By tradition, the album comes with a superb gatefold picture sleeve. The edition of 500 copies only comes on white vinyl.

The first CD contains 4 pieces (total 74 minutes) of textural and spectral music, but with movement and variation. In contrast the second disc contains one 74 minute long piece based on only two sound sources taken from Bass Communion's well known Drugged piece, stretched out into one almighty soulful drone that will leave any room it's played in somehow permanently altered.

In the slipstream of the highly successful Continuum CD (a collaborative project between Bass Communion and vidnaObmana), issued on Soleilmoon in 2005, comes an exclusive double vinyl release on ToneFloat. The music is a collection of recyclings sourced from the first CD, functioning as a compendium to continuum but different enough to stand alone. Each subsequent volume of continuum will be accompanied by an exclusive vinyl set of recyclings. The first of the series was structured and recorded by vidnaObmana based upon Bass Communion's unreleased 'Construct III – Immersion Mix', with reference to the three original pieces on the Continuum CD release. vidnaObmana performed complex and detailed reworks to create four brand new, unique Continuum sound miasmas. A new chapter in the ongoing exchange in sound and structure between Bass Communion and vidnaObmana.

'Chiaroscuro' (a contrast between light and dark) is a recording of a live performance given in 1st November 2008 at Theatre CC Luchtbal, in Antwerp, Belgium, using laptop and guitar. This was the first ever live performance of Bass Communion, and was the result of an invitation from Dirk Series to appear as special guest at his Fear Falls Burning 'Frenzy Of The Absolute' concert.

'Fusilier' was included on the split Bass Communion / Fear Falls Burning 7" single given to attendees of the concert. It was recorded in Mexiko and London in February 2008. Again just using laptop and guitar, but this time with some post-production editing and layering.

In 1843 a mild mannered man was so obsessed with windmills that he would gaze at them for days on end. His friends tried to distract him from the fixation by moving him to an area with no mills. There the windmill man lured a boy into the woods, then killed and mutilated him. His motive, he explained, was the hope that as punishment he would be taken to a place where there just might be a mill.

This record contains a slightly reworked recording of a live performance on 12" vinyl with a total playing time of 26 minutes. No additional overdubs were made, but parts of the music on the second side were subsequently layered and recycled in the studio. On side 1 'Courage' is in the tradition of ambient musique concrete, and continues the style and approach of the previous Bass Communion / Freiband releases. But on side 2 'Cowardice' shatters expectations with a slab of psychedelic noise assault, complete with exploding rhythm machines and gnarled electric guitar.

In 2019 released digitally as a part of compilation 'Bass Communion / Freiband (Digital only compilation)'.

Sleeve unfolds into a 60cm x 90cm poster

Note by Steven Wilson:

Many of you will be aware of my love of industrial and noise music, and one of my favourite labels of this kind in recent years has been the old school 80's industrial revivalist label Kurzwellen, affiliated with ToneFloat from the Netherlands (who have released many of my projects over the years, including the IEM and Bass Communion box sets). Each of their releases so far have been in the form of hyper limited edition vinyl only releases, sometimes only 100 copies of so, and each is housed in a 24x36inch silkscreen poster sleeve with suitably grim black and white imagery. This time around the label played me a new album they were releasing as Kurzwellen 7, 'Hinterkaifeck' by Precision Surgery ('Hinterkaifeck' being the location of a famous unsolved murder from the 1920's), and I felt inspired to create 2 minimal Bass Communion remix treatments which are now being released alongside the Precision Surgery album as Kurzwellen 8. Both LPs are out on 7th July and can be pre-ordered from the Tonefloat Store. Not recommended for people who find the music under my own name quite depressing enough already thank you very much...

Tracks 2-4 new versions recorded 2019

Written and performed by Steven Wilson

Tracks 1, 3 and 4 created by Steven Wilson, Track 2 remixed by :zoviet*france:

'Dronework' was originally recorded in 2003 during the sessions for the Bass Communion album 'Ghosts on Magnetic Tape'. It didn't belong with the rest of the music on that album, but was later released as a standalone EP, first as an on-demand CDR in 2004, then on factory-pressed CD in 2008 (limited to 1 000 copies.)

It was then unavailable for many year, until early 2019 when I launched the Bass Communion Bandcamp page, and icluded it as part of the catalogue available for digital download. Around the same time I was approached by two labels keen to reissue Dronework in physical form (one on the newly resurgent cassette format). Rather than a straight reissue, I decided to revisit the original source material and to create new versions of the piece. Ultimately the new CD edition is on my own label Headphone Dust, while the cassette version comes courtesy of Canadian label Coup sur Coup Records.

This 2019 CD edition contains a remaster of the original track, but also two new versions created in 2019, and a remix by the legendary British experimental / drone collective :zoviet*france:. ZF have long been one of my favourite artists in the field, and I trusted that their approach would be to interpret the piece in a way that sounds completely like :zoviet*france:, but at the same time only like Bass Communion. Which is say exactly what a remix should be, with the DNA of both artist and remixer in perfect balance.

'Dronework' was recorded in August 2003 and first released 2004. All other versions were created in 2019 using the orignal elements as a starting point, but with the addition of several new sounds and layers.

Bass Communion / Freiband – VL Tones

29 November 2019

Four unused one-minutes pieces that Steven Wilson created from raw Casio VL-Tone 1 recordings by Frans de Waard started further collaborative work. Over the next few months several hours of music was generated. The result was edited and sequenced to created the listening experience found on the first two discs in this set, with a bonus disc of outtakes.

All sound by SW 2020-2021
 Final assembly and mix June 2021
 Voices by Yali and Mia
 Cover photograph and design by Carl Glover for Aleph
 Audio resolution - 48k/24bit

2 pieces that originated as sound design / soundtrack material for the work in progress movie 'And No Birds Sing'.

This first 28 minute sequence is assembled from material created for the film, dark industrial sound design, with cavernous metal scrapes, water drips, subterranean drones, and shortwave radio transmissions.

The second theme piece is more beautiful and harmonic, built around a sequence of chords in regular intervals that only arrives back at the beginning after moving through 24 different piano chords.

'And No Birds Sing' is a story that crosses genres, having aspects of Psychological Thriller, Horror and Mystery. Reality merges with film and the supernatural when a London director starts to experience strange events and is forced to confront his troubled past. The film blurs the lines of reality, memory and fiction where sound constantly motivates the twists and turns of the action.

5 sets of test pressings of this double 1-sided LP set were made. Poor mastering led to sub-standard sound quality resulting in the vinyl edition being scrapped and the release being revised as a CD + DVD-Audio set. Test pressings came with blank white labels and plain white paper sleeve. Blackfield

Collaborative project between SW and Israeli musician and songwriter Aviv Geffen.

In November 2000 Porcupine Tree visited Israel for the first time with the help of Aviv Geffen, a hugely popular artist in Israel. They played three concerts and Aviv came on stage to sing Russia on Ice and Feel So Low with the band. Subsequently Aviv and Steven became good friends, resulting in them collaborating on the musical project Blackfield.

The resulting album was recorded over the next 3 years, and was issued by Helicon/Universal in February 2004, but later picked up for worldwide release by Snapper Music in August 2004. A number of singles have also been issued, two of which reached number one in Israel.

Two years back and forth on the London-Tel-Aviv flight path, a mutual artistic curiosity, and a close friendship are the components that gave birth to Aviv and Steven's Blackfield project.

Aviv Geffen, a highly successful solo artist and outspoken (not to mention controversial) peace campaigner, with a string of gold albums in his own country, discovered the music of Steven's band Porcupine Tree in the mid 90's and followed their career development. In 2000 he invited the band to perform some concerts in Israel and met with Steven in London to discuss the idea. Something clicked and before long they had already collaborated on the very first Blackfield song. In 2001 the two met in a studio in Tel Aviv with the intention of recording a one-off EP. So pleased were they and the record company with the results however, that the EP originally scheduled for release in 2001 was cancelled and the decision was made to continue writing and recording with the aim of completing a full length LP. Over the next 18 months the pair fitted in Blackfield writing and recording sessions whenever they could between their other commitments and finally in October 2003 the album was complete.

The collaborative songs alongside songs written by each separately brought a unique meeting of cultures, which resulted in a sophisticated, melodic and melancholic rock album.

The 10 track album was first issued by Helicon/Universal in Israel in February 2004 and spawned two huge hit singles in 'Hello' and 'Pain'. The success of the album meant that the next step to making Blackfield a live band could be taken, and in February a 5 piece band version of Blackfield made their debut by performing on several prime time Israeli TV shows.

In the meantime an international release for the album was arranged through Snapper Music in the UK, and the album was issued in August to phenomenal reviews in Europe and America, many hailing it as a masterpiece and an instant classic. Aviv and Steven undertook a major promotional campaign and the live band played two special concerts to launch the album, one each in their two home towns of Tel Aviv and London. The Blackfield album looks set to be one of the most important releases of 2004.

Lonely Soul

09 March 2017

Official video for 'Lonely Soul' directed and created by Lasse Hoile
<http://www.lassehoile.com>

Actor: Serena Marija

Shot and directed by Lasse Hoile

Make-up : Niloufar Zand

With thanks to : Arghavan Abdollahi, Iman Zand and Mari Lon

Produced by Fade to Grey

Hoile explains his inspiration for the clip:

"When I heard Lonely Soul for the first time I just felt it was like a scene from one of the many stories I've heard over the years, people's experiences dealing with depression and anxiety. It became a personal story after a very good friend of mine had been suffering a great deal with this, and with their depression not being treated properly it developed into a form of self loathing. Although sad, this is an important subject I think we all need to be aware of and hopefully we will learn to reach out and help each other. The hardest part is often asking for help."

Promotional Releases

Hello

2001

This was a one track CD single pressed up by Helicon, Israel in 2001. This was a proper CD single with full artwork, but it was never issued because the decision was made to cancel the planned 6 track mini EP album and work on a full album. But there are around 50 copies printed.

IL Helicon Ltd. – CSDJ283

1. Hello

3:07

Lyrics by Aviv Geffen and Steven Wilson / Music by Aviv Geffen

Produced and performed by Blackfield (Aviv Geffen & Steven Wilson) Winter 2001. Drums by Chris Maitland courtesy of Porcupine Tree.

Recorded at New Rising Studio, Colchester, England and mixed at No Man's Land, England. Pre-production at Hook Studio, Tel-Aviv.

Technical Assistance: Mark Daghorn, Eyal Dafna
Mastered at the Town house, London by Geoff Pesche
Photography: Hanna Sahar/Cover Design: Ran Barlev

This is a different version to the released 2003 one. There are no strings overdubbed and the mix is different.

Counterfeits/Pirates/Fakes

Open Mind

Coloured 6" flexi disc from Budkon (#6936) with an excerpt of 'Open Mind' (2:09). Note that Porcupine Tree is printed on the front cover instead of Blackfield.

Blackfield

Identifiable by the words "plus 4 HIDDEN BONUS TRACKS" on the CD label and a complete black background on the CD spine.

Blackfield II

The artwork is not so easy to differentiate, but the print quality on the CD label is pretty poor (diffuse, wrong colouring). On the front cover the Blackfield lettering use also a different colouring, it's more like a brown yellow, where the original uses more a sandy yellow colouring.

NYC (DVD)

Easy identifiable by the fact that the counterfeit comes in a small CD-size cover while the original release is packed in a book-sized DVD Digipak with a high quality cardboard sleeve. On the DVD label of the counterfeit the Kscope label is missing between the catalog number (SMADVD055) and the DVD Video logo, also the colouring is different (with a kind of a blue cast instead of black & white).

BSM

BSM is an acronym for Bazz (Barrett), Steven (Wilson) and Marc (Gordon).

Although Marc Gordon is initial featured in the band's name, BSM actually consisted only of Steven Wilson and Bazz Barrett. Steven explained Marc's absence from the recordings, "I think originally when we first fo together, it was Bazz, Steven and Marc but probably by the time we recorded maybe Marc was no longer partaking." (Interview by Guy Tkach & Peter M Sieker 10th June 2019)

The majority of BSM's music was instrumental or featured heavily distorted vocals by Bazz Barrett.

Their first release 'Thats The End Of The Blues, Now Heres The Weather' contains nine songs by BSM and one track by Amber Dawn and reached No. 4 in Sounds 'Obscurist' chart.

'Butterflies ... Margerine Doesn't' the second release by BSM was released May 1983, also on Broken Skull Tapes, but SW doesn't recall being involved in this second cassette: "I'm pretty sure that was just Buzz on his own, the second one. I have a bare recollection of it, but I suspect it was him just carrying it on without me anyway." (Innerviews.org, 'Dream Logic' Interview by Anil Prasad 2010)

God

Retrieved from the archives, 'God' was the collaboration between myself and singer and multi-instrumentalist Ford. We wrote and recorded on and off in the late 80's and early 90's, taking a cue from our shared love of the new wave pop of artists such as Talking Heads, Japan and Magazine. Whilst I was on a path to having a long-term career with No-Man and Porcupine Tree, and Ford moved into the world of acting, God never got around to making a record or playing any shows at the time.

I.E.M. (Incredible Expanding Mindfuck)

This project developed out of Steven's interest in experimental music from the sixties, seventies and beyond, particularly krautrock, funkadelic, noise music and the cosmic jazz of artists like Sun Ra. The music is not intended to be nostalgic, but does nevertheless draw inspiration from aspects of this music. The project is almost entirely instrumental. Some might legitimately view the project as simply being a more abstract and indulgent version of Porcupine Tree.

The liner notes on most IEM CDs were completely barren of any information, including who actually played on the album (see also SW's note on that topic below), furthermore on 'IEM Have Come For Your Children' all songs are titled 'Untitled'.

Most black and white photos from the cover artwork are retrieved from SW's archive, but the context of these pictures, in relation to the music, is as much mystical, as the music itself.

Note by SW:

"You have attempted to list the players for each IEM album but I have never provided this information! I am certainly not the only person playing on 'IEM', 'Escalator To Xmas' and 'Arcadia Son' and I can tell you that the list of names on the back of 'IEM Have Come For Your Children' are not the list of people who play on the CD (though some of them do). Confusing huh? And that's just the way I like it!"

Karma

Karma was formed in 1982 by Steven and 3 friends from Steven's school. According to Steven, the band was very much inspired by the success of bands like Marillion. They released only 2 demo tapes, 'The Last Man To Laugh' and 'The Joke's On You' and played around 30-40 gigs, in their 3 year existence. Since all of the group members were still at school and none of them were old enough to drive, it was very difficult to perform outside of their local area. So nearly all of these gigs were in Hertfordshire. Steven mentioned in an interview, that he is in the possession of several cassettes from these live shows, so maybe they also circulate around on some trade lists.

After the band disbanded in 1986, Steven lost contact with all Karma members, except drummer Marc Gordon who is still a good friend of SW. In fact Marc helped Steven to upgrade his studio to a computer based recording system (Pro Tools 24), as Marc worked for a company called "Natural Audio", who are specialists in digital recording technology.

No-Man

No-Man is the successor band of 'No-Man Is An Island (Except The Isle Of Man)'. After Stuart Blagden departed, the remaining trio (Bowness/Coleman/Wilson) took the opportunity to shorten their name to the more elegant No-Man and to refine their direction.

Influenced by the impact of hip-hop and dub artists like Public Enemy, A Tribe Called Quest and King Tubby (and, indirectly, by the growth of more dance-based pop movements such as the "Madchester" of 808 State and Happy Mondays), No-Man added dance rhythms and impetus to their art-pop songs.

The first result of this new approach was 1990's 'Colours' – a violin-and-beat-soaked crooner cover of a Donovan song with a bass groove atmosphere which anticipated the birth of trip-hop. The single made an immediate press impact (Single Of The Week in both 'Melody Maker' and 'Sounds') and led to a contract with record-label-of-the-moment One Little Indian Records, home of Björk and The Shamen. An equally majestic and romantic single – 'Days In The Trees' – followed in 1991. This was Single Of The Week in 'Melody Maker', 'Sounds' and 'Teletext', and is still remembered as one of the great "should-have-been-hits" of the '90s.

In 1992 the band found themselves playing live shows with ex-Japan maestros Steve Jansen, Richard Barbieri and Mick Karn, who also guest on much of no-man's output beginning with 1993 debut 'Loveblows and Lovecries'. Among other things, it laid the ground for the Tim Bowness/Richard Barbieri duo album 'Flame', and for Richard Barbieri's later recruitment into Porcupine Tree. For their third album, 1994 masterpiece 'Flowermouth', help was also enlisted in the form of Robert Fripp, his old colleague Mel Collins, the jazz musician Ian Carr and future Porcupine Tree drummer Chris Maitland. The result was an audacious melange – both timely and independent of trends – which drew together contemporary dance pop, collective improvisation, expansive art-rock, moody minimalism, and even an assertive '90s remodelling of progressive rock.

Following 'Flowermouth's' release, No-Man parted company with both One Little Indian and violinist Ben Coleman and effectively retired from live performance. While they incubated new material, two interim albums followed on the band's own Hidden Art imprint in 1995 – 'Heaven Taste' (a compilation of the more ambient No-Man B-sides and rarities) and 'Flowermix' (a set of trance-dance meets art-rock dance remixes from 'Flowermouth'). In 1996, No-Man announced their return on a new label – 3rd Stone Ltd., home of Spacemen 3 and Bark Psychosis. The fresh start was spearheaded by the bleak and baleful 'Housewives Hooked on Heroin' single, a taster for the 'Wild Opera' album which followed that autumn.

'Wild Opera' was a far darker, more beat-driven and wilfully exploratory recording than 'Flowermouth', with lyrics and moods musing on a fractured, threatening and often crushing world. No-Man's taste for melancholy balladry and cinematic art-rock soundscaping was still in evidence, but this time it was joined by savage industrial dance, luscious trip hop and odder pop excursions than the band had ever attempted before. Most of the album had emerged from a series of semi-spontaneous improvisations recorded over a few hours rather than planned-out attempts at songwriting.

After the release of the 'Dry Cleaning Ray' single, one of the best 'Wild Opera' tracks, No-Man remained quiet for a while while Tim and Steven worked separately on projects such as Porcupine Tree, Darkroom, Samuel Smiles, Bass Communion and I.E.M. But the silence was broken in summer 1998, when the beautifully melancholic 'Carolina Skeletons' EP was released, featuring No-Man's most glorious piano ballad to date. Later in the year, No-Man released 'Radio Sessions: 1992-96', compiling various No-Man moments retrieved from the airwaves and featuring various line-ups of the band including several "unplugged" moments and performances by both Chris Maitland and Porcupine Tree bassist Colin Edwin, as well as Jansen, Barbieri and Karn.

A remastered 'Flowermouth' returned to the shops in autumn 1999, and was preceded by the summer '99 release of 'Speak' – an album of remastered recordings from secret sessions in 1988 and 1989 in which No-Man had explored their more ambient and impressionistic side. 'Speak' was a sustained and gorgeous mood-piece of densely organic soundscapes, quiet ambition and heartfelt emotionalism, and rapidly proved that it had remained a work of genuine beauty and substance. The trio of Steven's atmospheres, Ben Coleman's sensual violin shapes and Tim's abstract, cryptic balladry of hopes, doubts and abandonment rendered it a timeless collection of music: one which contained some of No-Man's most beautiful and haunting moments.

No-Man's next album, 'Returning Jesus' was released in early 2001. With the recording loosely based around a quartet of Wilson, Bowness, Porcupine Tree's bass player Colin Edwin and Steve Jansen on drums, the album was the airiest and most natural No-Man had made to date. Crossing the conflicting streams of 'Wild Opera' and 'Flowermouth', it was a mature work – surprisingly subtle and airy, and boasting a fragrant melodicism. Musical contributions from Ian Carr, David Kosten, Ian Dixon and Colin Edwin quietly coloured its wistful balladry with blended sounds both chillingly electric and warmly acoustic. Exquisite white soul, pensive pain, hopeful resolution and string-drowned vistas of regret and fascination all played their part in the latest step forward for No-Man.

Before the year was out, 'Lost Songs: Volume One' (a compilation of assorted No-Man studio outtakes from 1991 to 1997, wildly varying in both mood and method) was released on Tim Bowness' own Burning Shed label in summer 2001. It bore further witness to No-Man's diversity and creativity. Not only did it unearth a few radically different versions of familiar No-Man songs, it revealed some of the other paths the band had explored en route to albums like 'Flowermouth' and 'Wild Opera': from meticulously-structured electro-pop to improvised oddities and fragments, from punk swing to electronic bliss-out; from orchestrated ensemble pieces (with guest appearances from Robert Fripp, Theo Travis, Colin Edwin and Mel Collins) to sparse duo recordings.

No-Man continues to write and record, thrilled by possibilities, and always happiest when working in their own kind of terra incognita. Popular music's most important dictum is not to get bored. With so much to discover and to bring to life, No-Man are a long way from being bored yet.

Recorded in England by Steven Wilson

About 'Colours' (taken from the official no-man website):

No-Man announced their arrival with a beats'n'atmospheres reworking of a Donovan classic that was lustrous, dreamy and dramatic all at once, and which anticipated trip-hop by the best part of a year. It was later remixed and appeared on 'Lovesighs – An Entertainment'.

The Probe Plus release was the second release of 'Colours' and included the original version of 'Drink Judas', which was re-recorded for 'Lovesighs – An Entertainment'.

"Too frightened to fly, you hit the ground"

About 'Ocean Song' (taken from the official no-man website):

A third single (as yet unreleased on album) and another touched by the Donovan legacy – new words and shimmering, grooving instrumentation to the melody of 'Turquoise'. Backed with the musical-box sleepiness of 'Back To The Burning Shed' and the fraught, operatic, dance-rock drama of 'Swirl'.

About 'Speak : 1988-89' (taken from the official no-man website):

A collection of timeless pre-beat ambient songcraft from 1988-89, mixing the New Music transcendence of the likes of Arvo Pärt and Gorecki with the sublime and rarefied atmospheric territory of Talk Talk, AR Kane and Cocteau Twins. An album of densely organic soundscapes, quiet ambition and heartfelt emotionalism, 'Speak' is that rare thing, a work of genuine beauty and substance.

This original version of 'Speak' features completely different vocal tracks as well as the original recordings of 'Night Sky Sweet Earth' and 'Curtain Dream', plus three otherwise unavailable tracks – 'Forest Almost Burning', a version of 'Heaven's Break' (without the harmonica part featured on the CD reissue) and 'Desert Heart' (an early version of 'Close Your Eyes', a song which would eventually appear on 'Returning Jesus').

Most tracks were reissued on the CD release of 'Speak'.

About 'Taking It Like a Man' (taken from the official no-man website):

No-Man's debut American single – never released in Britain or elsewhere in the world – was taken from the US version of 'Loveblows & Lovecries – A Confession' (as was 'Housekeeping'). Displaying the band at their most throbbingly glamorous, it also ended up as the theme tune to 'Models Inc.'.

A version of 'Taking It Like A Man' also appears on 'Radio Sessions: 1992-96'.

The Buddah-Pic remixes were done by Pichotti & Bristol in New York, commissioned by Epic without any input from NO-MAN.

"Remember the time when I fell in love only to cry in my sleep"

About 'Flowermouth' (taken from the official.no-man.website):

No-Man's dazzling third album: a vitally important evolution, finally realising the expansive promise of earlier tracks. A magical melange of dream-pop, art-rock and moody minimalism, with an epic orchestral scope well served by the guest performances of Jansen and Barbieri, King Crimson's Robert Fripp and Mel Collins, jazz trumpeter Ian Carr and eerie Dead Can Dance singer Lisa Gerrard.

Note from SW: "The reason why later versions of 'Watching Over Me' are credited to Tim alone, is because these versions use only the song section (by Tim) and not the extended instrumental string outro (written by me) which appears on this album version."

About 'Loveblows and Lovecries – A Confession' (taken from the official.no-man.website):

No-Man's emotive, intelligent second album: a sensual dive into swooning progressive synth-pop, packed with gorgeous hooks, aching hearts, sparkling atmospheres and avant-garde underpinnings.

This US-only release featured two extra tracks: 'Taking It Like A Man' (also released as a single) and 'Days In The Trees – Mahler' (from 'Lovesighs – An Entertainment' – the US remix is only marginally different from the original).

No-Man's third album, released in 1996, is possibly the most experimental album in the band's catalogue. Rapidly shifting from distorted grooves to sinister, jazz-inflected Trip-Hop and from choked rock riffs to more traditional ballad fare, 'Wild Opera' represented a vital creative departure for the band.

"Maybe there's more to life than just writing songs. Maybe not"

About 'Wild Opera' (taken from the official no-man.website):

No-Man's fourth studio album proper – an unfettered amalgam of art-rock, trip-hop and difficult dub influences building on demanding improvisatory writing sessions; strong, strange and instinctive. The sound of a band rediscovering reasons to exist. Music on the move (to where?)...

About '((speak))' (taken from the official no-man website):
A collection of timeless pre-beat ambient songcraft from 1988-89, given a full issue in 1999 and mixing the New Music transcendence of the likes of Arvo Pärt and Gorecki with the sublime and rarefied atmospheric territory of Talk Talk, AR Kane and Cocteau Twins. An album of densely organic soundscapes, quiet ambition and heartfelt emotionalism, '((Speak))' is that rare thing, a work of genuine beauty and substance.

The reissue on SW's Headphone Dust label features sleeve notes by Tim, SW and Dann Chinn, expanded artwork and the bonus track 'The Hidden Art of Man Ray' which was briefly available on the withdrawn compilation CD 'Hidden Art Sampler'.

These 12 tracks were originally written and recorded in the period 1988-89. For this release the original recordings were used as the basis for new versions. All the vocals were redone, but most of the instrumentation is taken from the original 8 track tapes. The exceptions are 'Curtain Dream' and 'Night Sky Sweet Earth' which are completely new versions.

"Follow me down to where I'll always be"

About 'Returning Jesus' (taken from the official no-man website):

No-Man's first words of the new millennium, and a return (in part) to the introspective balladry of 'Flowermouth'. Soul, post-rock, classical depth, trance, chamber jazz and singer-songwriter intimacy all blend on No-Man's subtlest album to date, with a more airy, organic band sound than any previous recording, and an impressive roster of guest performers.

Lost Songs: Volume One

About 'Lost Songs: Volume One' (taken from the official no-man website):

Flawed but no longer ignored, 'Lost Songs: Volume One' is a 14 track, 60 minute collection of previously unreleased material dating from 1991-97. Featuring 'Flowermouth'-era contributions from Robert Fripp and Mel Collins and further fallout from the experimental 'Wild Opera'/'Dry Cleaning Ray' sessions, 'Lost Songs: Volume One' is an essential purchase for the No-Man completist.

These "lost" songs were recorded at No Man's Land between 1991 and 1997. Most of them with a minimum of overdubbing and remixing could easily have ended up on an album...but for whatever reason they didn't. For example the pure pop of 'Days Like These' arrived when we were committed to making the more experimental Wild Opera album, and the industrial breakbeat jazz of Gothgirl Killer was recorded while we were working towards our most laid back and spiritual album Returning Jesus. In addition to the lost songs there are three remixes here that were never issued (with the exception of a brief Japanese release for one) and two more pieces from our one-hour-to-write-record-and-mix-a-track research and development sessions.

There are still plenty of lost songs and some of them we plan to rework someday. But this is as far as we intend to go with these particular tracks, so we decided to set them free as they are, flawed but no longer ignored.

The version of 'Days In The Trees' which appears on 'All The Blue Changes' is a different mix of the 'Mahler' version which made considerable impact when released as a single – it also features a longer fadeout than the other versions.

The version of 'Dry Cleaning Ray' is a version of the single mix without a fade-out (running about 30 seconds longer), and 'My Revenge On Seattle' is the unused alternate mix and edit made for a planned single release (before the band chose 'Dry Cleaning Ray' instead).

Of the rare tracks, 'Walker' dates back to the 1991 sessions for 'Loveblows & Lovecries' and would have featured on the initial tracklist for that album. 'The Break Up For Real (Drum Mix)' and '(blue coda)' both originally appeared on the limited-edition vinyl edition of 'Together We're Stranger'.

The first two discs include the original album as issued in 2001, additional bonus tracks from the 'Carolina Skeletons' EP, and the 'All That You Are' EP. Some of the songs were written and demoed as early as 1994, even pre-dating sessions for the previous no-man album 'Wild Opera' (released in 1996), but definitive mixes were not completed until 1999, during which time the songs evolved through a series of demos and alternate arrangements. The tracks on the 3rd disc have been exclusively selected from among these alternate versions, and all are previously unissued with the exception of 'Like A Child' which was originally released on the charity compilation 'The Sky Goes All The Way Home'.

'Wherever There Is Light' from the album 'Schoolyard Ghosts'
Live tracks from the forthcoming DVD 'Mixtaped'

Music by No-Man, lyrics by Bowness

Studio tracks produced No-Man at No Man's Land 2007-2009

Live tracks recorded at Bush Hall, London, 29/08/08, directed by Neil Wilkes

Design & photography by Carl Glover for Aleph

The poignant title track (from 'Schoolyard Ghosts') features an incredible guest performance from US pedal steel legend Bruce Kaphan (American Music Club/Red House Painters) and flute from frequent band ally Theo Travis. The alt-country-tinged 'Death Was California' and the atmospheric 'Counting' were specially written for the EP and recorded at No Man's Land during 2008 and 2009 ('Counting' features a guest performance by the live band's electric violinist Steve Bingham). 'Carolina Skeletons' and 'All The Blue Changes' are the first recordings released from No-Man's autumn 2008 mini-tour, featuring the full live band and taken from the London concert at Bush Hall, 29th August 2008.

Also containing Grant Wakefield's poetic video for the title track, an excerpt from the 'Mixtaped' DVD (in the shape of a live version of 'All The Blue Changes') and striking Carl Glover artwork, the enhanced 'Wherever There Is Light' EP is a rare and beautiful thing.

1. All The Reasons

5:09

Written by Tim Bowness and Steven Wilson

A prime slice of R'n'B, No-Man style – built up from softly apprehensive organ versus a muscular hip-hop beat and bass, stinging guitar noises, sweet synth, and a typically Bownessian portrait of a fraught, ill-matched relationship.

1. Lighthouse (1994 Demo Version) 10:34

Written by Tim Bowness and Steven Wilson

- (1) This is the original rough-mix version of what was to become the centrepiece of 2001's 'Returning Jesus' album – and dates from 1994 when most of the song was originally written. 'Lighthouse' was to be revised many times over the next five years. This version is generally less organic than the album version (with drum machines, more synths and fewer organs) and has a far more obviously Steve Reich/Minimalist influenced centre section slightly reminiscent of 'Angel Gets Caught In The Beauty Trap' – the free-jazz/experimental approach the band used for the final version emerged much later on in sessions held in 1999 and 2000.
- (2) Lighthouse was around for about 5 years and was demoed several times before being definitively recorded for Returning Jesus in the late 90's. This is the first version we recorded in April 1994, and also the slowest and longest. A second demo was made later the same month, and you can find that version of the Returning Jesus demos download available from Burning Shed's No-Man download store.

Written by Steven Wilson

Produced and engineered by Steven Wilson 1992

(1) This track was previously released as part of the 'Ocean Song' EP, which bridged the gap between No-Man's 'Lovesighs – An Entertainment' and 'Loveblows & Lovecries – A Confession' albums, and which was deleted not long after its release. As there are no current plans for reissuing this track, No-Man have opted to make it available again as a download for the benefit of the people who have never heard it.

(2) A lush but simple instrumental combination of Minimalist/Reichian celeste pattern and romantic pop ambience, 'Back To The Burning Shed' also lent part of its title to two future No-Man endeavours: the guestbook on the original No-Man website and the current CD-R label part-run by Tim from his current base in Norwich.

No-Man play Donovan's 'Colours'

Recorded in England by Steven Wilson

About 'Colours' (taken from the official no-man website):

No-Man announced their arrival with a beats'n'atmospheres reworking of a Donovan classic that was lustrous, dreamy and dramatic all at once, and which anticipated trip-hop by the best part of a year. It was later remixed and appeared on 'Lovesighs – An Entertainment'.

No-Man Is An Island

*No-Man is an island, entire of itself;
every man is a piece of the continent,
a part of the main.*

Taken from "Meditation XVII Devotions Upon Emergent Occasions"
by John Donne (1572-1631)

The band was formed by singer-songwriter Tim Bowness and Steven Wilson in Hemel Hempstead, England during 1986. Steven and Tim met at a time when they both felt in need of new challenges. When their first tentative rehearsal yielded two solid songs – both of them written and recorded in the course of a single afternoon – it became obvious that they were well-suited as working partners. The new band they formed – which initially went under the unwieldy, self-conscious monicker of 'No-Man Is An Island (Except The Isle Of Man)' – played a taut, dramatic brand of melodic art-rock, and blended both men's influences and potential in a more satisfactory and challenging manner than ever before. Following a few years of studio experimentation, and with the addition of dynamic violinist Ben Coleman and guitarist Stuart "The Still Owl" Blagden, No-Man Is An Island took to playing live.

An early single in 1989 – 'The Girl From Missouri' – was unsuccessful, and Blagden departed before the release of the 'Swagger' cassette EP; but the remaining trio took the opportunity to shorten their name to the more elegant No-Man and to refine their direction (refer to the no-man section).

About 'The Girl From Missouri' (taken from the official.no-man.website):

'The Girl From Missouri' was the first (and only) single from No-Man Is An Island before their metamorphosis into No-Man. A strong favourite in their live set at that time, it seemed to be the natural choice for a single. Heavily influenced by Peter Hammill's K Band, it shows a more flamboyantly theatrical side to No-Man songwriting which would rarely resurface in the future.

The title track is one of the only two released recordings to feature Stuart "The Still Owl" Blagden on guitar (the other is 'The Hidden Art Of Man Ray' from the 'Sampler' compilation on Hidden Art). The three other songs all reappeared on the cassette release of 'Speak : 1988-89'.

About 'Swagger' (taken from the official no-man website):

Four early No-Man Is An Island/No-Man songs, produced so that the band would have something to sell at concerts. 'Swagger' is very much a transitional release, with the band at an uncomfortable position between brash synth-pop, abrasive art-rock and the lush atmospheres which would later become a No-Man trademark.

Some promotional versions of 'Swagger' also featured 'The Girl From Missouri'. 'Bleed' appeared in two subsequent versions – one on the 'Sweetheart Raw' EP and one on 'Heaven Taste'. The song 'Flowermouth' has absolutely no connection with the 'Flowermouth' album apart from the title (although parts of the song were recycled for 'Lovecry' on 'Loveblows & Lovecries'). 'Life Is Elsewhere' is a song first performed by Tim Bowness' former band Plenty, and subsequently by Tim Bowness/Samuel Smiles.

About 'From A Toyshop Window' (taken from the official no-man website):

'From A Toyshop Window' was the first No-Man Is An Island track made available – it's a solo track by Steven Wilson, preceding Tim Bowness' involvement. The track is a strange mixture of home-made '80s synth-pop and progressive rock instrumental.

There are two different versions of the Exposure LP. One with a 1cm wide sunken rim in the label, the other with a smooth label.

Double Exposure

About 'Faith's Last Doubt' (taken from the official no-man website):

'Faith's Last Doubt' – an early attempt at a moody No-Man ballad – was one of the two tracks written and recorded in the very first session Tim Bowness and Steve Wilson did together. Several of Steven's instrumental contributions were listed under various ridiculous pseudonyms; as was that of Nigel Childs (lead guitarist from '80s AOR band Pride Of Passion).

Porcupine Tree

Porcupine Tree was born in 1987 as a psychedelic, experimental, and progressive music outlet for the home studio explorations of Steven Wilson. In fact, Wilson had already been making music for several years, as a musically precocious teenager who taught himself to play guitar and keyboards, and whose early tape releases with bands such as Altamont and Karma had already become known in the London musical underground (these tapes, which included early versions of later PT tracks like 'Nine Cats', 'Small Fish', and 'This Long Silence', would eventually become highly-valued collectables, a circumstance Wilson describes as "a bit like a painter having his nursery school blots exhibited").

In 1987, Wilson started two projects that would take him into the professional music world. The first was the art-rock trio NO-MAN (no-man.co.uk/), formed with singer Tim Bowness and violinist Ben Coleman (NO-MAN still exists today with a string of albums to their name). But the second began life almost as a joke between two friends: Steven and his friend Malcolm Stocks developed an almost entirely fictional history of a legendary seventies group, complete with non-existent band members and an absurd discography – this was The Porcupine Tree. To back up the story, Steven recorded several hours worth of music supposedly by this imaginary band. This was all done as pure self-indulgence, but by early 1989, Steven rated some of the music highly enough to compile a cassette, entitled 'Tarquin's Seaweed Farm', and sent out copies to people that he felt might be interested. One of them went to the underground UK magazine Freakbeat, run by Richard Allen and Ivor Trueman. Unknown to Steven at the time, they were in the process of setting up their own record company. Despite the fact that they gave the tape a rather lukewarm review in the magazine, they invited Porcupine Tree to contribute a track to their first release, a compilation album of the best underground psychedelic groups.

This was ultimately to take another 18 months or so to come to fruition, and in the meantime Steven began to distribute Porcupine Tree's music in the form of 'Tarquin's Seaweed Farm' and its follow up, 'The Nostalgia Factory', both complete with booklets containing the imaginary history and other misleading information. These tapes built up an underground interest in the name which was added to by the eventual release of the newly named Delerium record label's first compilation album, 'A Psychedelic Psalms', which featured the Porcupine Tree track 'Linton Samuel Dawson'. Delerium also reissued the first two Porcupine Tree tapes. Shortly afterwards, Steven was invited by the new label to be one of the first artists to sign to the Delerium label. The original invitation was to reissue both the tapes as double albums, but Steven decided instead to compile the best material onto one double album which became 'On The Sunday Of Life...', the third release on the new label (most of the remainder of the music from the original eventually emerged on another limited edition album entitled 'Yellow Hedgerow Dreamscape'). 'On The Sunday Of Life...' was issued in early 1992 in a small run of 1 000 copies in a deluxe gatefold sleeve. Such was the interest from the press and public that this small run sold out almost immediately and was repressed along with a CD version. Among other tracks the album contained a future Porcupine Tree classic and frequent concert encore in 'Radioactive Toy'. By 2000, 'On The Sunday Of Life...' had racked up sales of over 20 000 copies.

While this was happening, Steven's other group NO-MAN had signed a record deal with One Little Indian (home of Bjork among others) and were beginning to release records to an ecstatic press response. NO-MAN allowed Steven to become a full-time professional musician, and enabled him to dedicate even more time to his "side project". The first Porcupine Tree album had been a self-indulgent and in some ways nostalgic look back at Steven's favourite music from the 60's and 70's, but he felt that in order to take the project forward it was important to develop the sound into new and more contemporary areas. The first fruits of these new sessions was a 30 minute single that fused the ambient trance of acts like The Orb and Future Sound of London, with liquid rock guitar soloing, strung together with a narrative taken from sixties LSD propaganda LPs. It was a major underground hit, reaching the UK independent Top 20 and a perfect representation of how the dissolution of boundaries between genres characterised the best music of the nineties.

In fact 'Voyage 34' was a track recorded for another prospective Porcupine Tree double album 'Up The Downstair'. However, when the album eventually emerged in mid-1993 the decision not to include the single had slimmed down the album to a single record. 'Up The Downstair' was greeted with rapture, Melody Maker describing it as "a psychedelic masterpiece.... one of the albums of the year." The album continued the fusion of dance and rock and also featured guest appearances from two future full-time Porcupine Tree members, Richard Barbieri (ex-80s art rock band Japan) and Colin Edwin.

In November 1993, 'Voyage 34' was reissued alongside an additional 12 inch remix by Astralasia. With non-existent radio play it still managed to enter the NME indie chart for six weeks and became an underground chill-out classic.

The profile of Porcupine Tree had now grown to the extent that the question of live performances could no longer be ignored. Thus, in December 1993, Porcupine Tree became a live unit featuring Steven, Colin Edwin (bass), Chris Maitland (drums), and Richard Barbieri (keyboards). All three new members of the group had worked with Steven on various projects over the preceding years and all were excellent musicians sympathetic to the sound and direction of Porcupine Tree. The new line up had an immediate chemistry as illustrated by the 'Spiral Circus' album (issued on vinyl in 1996) which contained recordings from their first ever 3 performances, including a BBC Radio One session for Mark Radcliffe, an early champion of the group.

New music was already underway. The next album would not emerge until early 1995, but was preceded by the classic single 'Stars Die / Moonloop', the last 2 tracks to be recorded during the album sessions and the first to feature the new band. The subsequent album, 'The Sky Moves Sideways', was as expansive soundscape of melody and ambient rock experimentation, but would prove to be a transitional work with half recorded before the formation of the band and half recorded after. Most of the album was taken up with the 35 minute title track, which at one point Steven intended to be long enough to occupy the whole album (an alternate version of the track, containing some of the excised music, was included on the 2004 remastered version of the album). It also entered the NME, Melody Maker, and Music Week charts. Together with the 'Moonloop' EP, this album became the first Porcupine Tree music to be issued in America in the autumn of 1995, and attracted favourable press on both sides of the Atlantic. The band supported the album with numerous gigs throughout the year at major venues in the UK, The Netherlands, Italy, and Greece.

Partly unsatisfied with the half band/half solo nature of 'The Sky Moves Sideways', Porcupine Tree promptly got down to the task of recording the first proper band record and worked sporadically over the next year on developing a tighter and more ambitious rock sound.

May 1996 saw the release of the first fruits of these sessions, the single 'Waiting', which entered all UK indie charts and the UK National chart attracting airplay all over Europe. It was followed by 'Signify', the first album to fully reflect the powerful live sound of the band, blending together numerous rock and avant-garde styles, while absorbing many diverse influences but relying on none. A large amount of major European media interest accompanied the album's release, as Porcupine Tree has now become a highly respected force in the musical underground. 'Signify' is regarded by the band (and many fans) as one of their finest works. The band went on to complete a highly successful European tour.

Porcupine Tree continued to increase in popularity abroad during 1997 and in March played to an audience of over 5000 in Rome over three nights – all of which were recorded for the 1997 live album 'Coma Divine'. This album was released as a goodbye to Delerium Records, which felt it could no longer offer the kind of resources the band needed in order to continue to build its profile worldwide. In late 1997, the band's first three albums were remastered and reissued. 'Signify' also saw a release in the US on Miles Copeland's ARK 21 label.

Steven, Richard, Colin, and Chris spent all of 1998 recording their fifth studio album, a release that reflected the band's move towards a more song orientated sound. At the time of recording, the band had no record deal, but later that year they signed to the Snapper/K-Scope label and in March of 1999, the album 'Stupid Dream' was issued, supported by a lengthy tour of the UK, Italy, Greece, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, Germany, France, Poland, and the USA. The three singles taken from the album – 'Piano Lessons', 'Stranger By the Minute', and 'Pure Narcotic' – all achieved mainstream exposure in the US and in Europe and appeared well placed in the UK independent charts and on radio station playlists. Although initially the album was such a departure that some older fans were unsure, it brought the band many new fans and went on to become the band's best selling and most acclaimed release to date.

The time spent looking for a record deal had not been wasted and only a few months after the release of 'Stupid Dream', the band were ready to begin work on a follow up, recorded during the transition into the new millennium and completed in February 2000. With string arrangements provided by Dave Gregory of XTC, 'Lightbulb Sun' built on the mix of songwriting, soundscaping, and rock dynamics of 'Stupid Dream', but developed it into something altogether more intense and organic, a band confidently in control of their sound. The album was released in May, 2000, preceded by the single 'Four Chords That Made A Million'. A sold out show at the Scala in London began a short run of UK shows, to be followed later in the year by European festival dates and a major tour supporting Dream Theater.

The band continued to tour through the end of 2000 and the start of 2001, including their first major tour of Germany. A special double CD edition of the 'Lightbulb Sun' album was issued in Israel and Germany, and in May, 'Recordings', a limited edition collection of EP tracks and outtakes from the previous two albums, was released as the band's final release under their Snapper/Kscope contract. In June 2001 the band played a short US tour, culminating in a sold out show at the Bottom Line in New York City. Shortly afterwards Porcupine Tree announced that they had signed a new international record deal with Lava/Atlantic Records.

In February 2002 Porcupine Tree's first ever line-up change occurred when drummer Chris Maitland departed after eight years with the band. The band welcomed extraordinary drummer and long term acquaintance Gavin Harrison to the line-up.

In March, as a major retrospective box set of the band's early work, 'Stars Die – The Delerium Years 1991-97' was released, the band commenced recording their first major label album, drawing from a pool of 30 new songs written by Steven in the previous two years. Sessions took place in New York and London, with veteran engineer Paul Northfield (Rush, Ozzy Osbourne, Hole) and string arranger Dave Gregory also playing major roles in the making of the record. Mixing of the new album was completed in LA in May with Tim Palmer.

The eagerly awaited new album, 'In Absentia', was released by Lava Records in September 2002 (European release Jan 2003). It was the band's most accomplished and complete work to date, featuring a much heavier sound on some tracks, but also some of the band's most beautiful and fragile works. The album received great praise worldwide and went on to become the band's best selling album shifting over 100 000 copies in it's first year of release, and charting in several European countries. The band also released a 5.1 surround sound version of the album, mixed by legendary Grammy award winning producer Elliot Scheiner, which went on to win the award for best 5.1 mix at the 2004 Surround Sound Music awards in LA. To promote the album the band undertook four tours of Europe and North America, including one with acclaimed Swedish metal band Opeth. On tour the new line up of the band was further augmented by additional touring vocalist/guitarist John Wesley.

During these tours the visual element of the band's performance was taken to new heights with the involvement of filmmaker and photographer Lasse Hoile, who created a dark and surreal visual counterpoint to the PT's music. The long promotional campaign for 'In Absentia' ended on November 30th as the band played a homecoming show to a sold out London Astoria.

During 2003, Porcupine Tree also set up their own label and on-line store. The first release on the Transmission label was a studio session recorded for XM Radio, Washington, followed in 2004 by a recording from Polish radio in 2001. The band plan to use the label to issue a series of well recorded and packaged live and exclusive studio recordings.

2003 also saw the start of a lengthy reissue / remaster campaign, with many of the early albums expanded to double CDs. These reissues included a rerecorded / remixed version of the 'Up The Downstair' album, and the reissue of 'Stupid Dream' and 'Lightbulb Sun' on Lava/Atlantic.

In early 2004 the band embarked on the recording sessions for an ambitious new Porcupine Tree album, 'Deadwing', their second for Lava/Atlantic. The album takes it's inspiration from a film script (and hopefully later a film) written by Steven with his filmmaker friend Mike Bennion. With the album sessions completed in November 2004, and the band's total worldwide sales now approaching half a million units, demand for new music from the band was at an all time high, and increasing media coverage, word of mouth and fan-power continued to create interest in Porcupine Tree on a massive scale throughout the world.

'Deadwing' was released in Europe and the US during the spring of 2005 as both a stereo and 5.1 surround sound album, preceded by the release of 2 singles, 'Shallow' in the US, and 'Lazarus' in Europe. The tour to promote the album commenced in the UK at the end of March, and continued throughout the year.

Since then, two major label album releases, 'In Absentia' and 'Deadwing', have augmented the band's renown. Heavier than previous releases, the albums have found favour with older fans and introduced Porcupine Tree to a whole new audience. The band also firmly established itself as being on the cutting edge in the audiophile/surround world: in 2004 and 2005, 'In Absentia' and 'Deadwing' were respectively released as 5.1 DVD-Audio editions by DTS Entertainment, and each won the Surround Music Award for Best Surround Mix in 2004 and 2005 respectively.

In late 2005, Porcupine Tree re-signed to Atlantic Records for the US, but moved to the highly successful independent rock label Roadrunner for Europe.

In September, 2006, Porcupine Tree released its first DVD, the live 'Arriving Somewhere...', filmed in Chicago during the 'Deadwing' world tour. The DVD was critically acclaimed for both its visual quality, as well as the 5.1 mix: reviewing the DVD, 'Sound and Vision' magazine concluded, "When it comes to surround sound, Porcupine Tree is in a league by itself."

In December 2006, recording commenced on the band's ninth studio album. The album, 'Fear Of A Blank Planet', is the band's most ambitious and cohesive work to date. Much of it was debuted last November to enthusiastic fan response on Porcupine Tree's sold-out U.S. and European tours in support of the release of 'Arriving Somewhere...'. The album title is a reference to the lyrical content of the song-cycle on the album: a 21st century cocktail of MTV, sex, prescription drugs, video games, the internet, terminal boredom, and subsequent escape.

In April, 2007, the band will embark on a six-month world tour in support of 'Fear Of A Blank Planet', one that will include Europe, the US, Japan, and Australia. The new album will be featured, and the show will feature the films and projections by the band's long-time visualist Lasse Hoile.

| 4. It Will Rain For A Million Years | 4:05 |

All tracks written by Steven Wilson except tracks A2, A3, A4, and B4 written by Wilson/Duffy,

Tracks of A1-A5 recorded at No Man's Land and Periscope Station spring – summer 1989. Produced by JC Camillioni and Porcupine Tree at Hidden Art.

Track B1 recorded at Periscope Station, spring 1989. The entire sound content of the piece is a recording of a musical box. This recording is then speeded up, slowed down, reversed and overdubbed several times to create the final musical experience.

Track B2 is a fragment from a 4 track demo recorded at Periscope Station in October 1987. Tree plays the guitars while Underspoon cranks his Mellotron up.

Track B3 recorded live in Paris July 14, 1989 and overdubbed and remixed at No Man's Land, October 1989.

Track B4 recorded at No Man's Land, October 1989

Produced by JC Camillioni and Porcupine Tree for Hidden Art Productions.

'Love, Death and Mussolini' is an E.P. E.P. stands for "extended player"

An "extended player" is longer than a single but not long enough to be called an L.P. (a long player).

Here then are 3 songs and 2 instrumentals, new material from the band Porcupine Tree.

These 5 tracks last for about 20 minutes in total. 20 minutes is a good duration for an "extended player".

However, 'Love, Death and Mussolini' takes advantage of the cassette medium by including an additional 17 minutes of music taking it to L.P. (long player) length.

This is known as "value for money". In the music industry it is known as "marketing". Do your accounting to the sound of Porcupine Tree.

Artwork by Alistair Campbell

The whole shebang was conducted and produced by JC Camillioni at No Man's Land on 16 track and at Periscope Station on 8 track. Some of the music is taken from unproduced 4 track demos which were retouched at No Man's Land.

Engineer for the sessions was Sebastian Tweetle-Blampton III.

The Nostalgia Factory was recorded between summer 89 – winter 91.

Most of these tracks appeared either on the album 'On The Sunday Of Life...' or the limited edition CD 'Yellow Hedgerow Dreamscape'. 'Colours Dance Angels Kiss' and 'Hokey Cokey' were later retitled 'Track 11' and 'Execution Of The Will Of The Marquis de Sade' respectively. 'The Nostalgia Factory' is an earlier version to that on 'On The Sunday Of Life...' and 'Queen Quotes Crowley' and 'This Long Silence' are both about a minute longer than the versions later released on CD. An edit of the track 'Sinatra Rape Scene' appears on 'Up The Downstair' as 'Monuments Burn Into Moments'.

On The Sunday Of Life...

12 May 1992

Debut album mostly compiled from two prior cassette releases 'Tarquin's Seaweed Farm' (1989) and 'The Nostalgia Factory' (1990). The rest of the music from these tapes was released three years later on the album 'Yellow Hedgerow Dreamscape'.

 Not entirely blameless: Alan Duffy, Malcolm Stocks, Alistair I. W. Campbell.

'On The Sunday Of Life...' is dedicated to Terumi and the spirit of Miles Davis.

Most of the lyrics were written by Alan Duffy, a school friend with whom Steven Wilson had lost touch a few years before the album was released. The album title was chosen from a long list of nonsense titles compiled by Richard Allen of Delerium.

HOW SHOULD PORCUPINE TREE BE USED?
WHAT ARE THE 5 LEVELS OF VOYAGE 34?
WHAT ARE THE SEXUAL VISIONS OF PORCUPINE TREE?
WHAT ARE THE SET AND SETTINGS OF VOYAGE 34?
SHOULD ANYONE BE ALLOWED TO GO ON VOYAGE 34?
DOES PORCUPINE TREE CAUSE HALLUCINATIONS?
HOW LONG DOES VOYAGE 34 LAST?
IS PORCUPINE TREE HABIT FORMING?
WHAT EFFECTS DOES VOYAGE 34 HAVE?
DOES PORCUPINE TREE POSE A DANGER?
DOES PORCUPINE TREE CAUSE INSANITY?
ARE THERE SUBSTITUTES BEING SOLD AS PORCUPINE TREE?

There are two different versions of the V.34 EP. According to the Record Collector, there was a misprint of 100 copies with the catalogue number DELEC-CD-EP-010 instead of DELEC CD EP 010. Only the cover is different (layout and text height), the normal cover has the group and title text in green (see above), the misprint version uses a blue colour instead (see artwork on the right).

On the first pressing in the run out grooves of side 1 is written "The purple dafodills explode into a rainbow of sound" and on side 2 "Where are you Mr Leary?".

I am grateful to Malcolm Stocks, who under his pseudonym of Solomon St. Jemain contributed some treated guitar and voice to five of these tracks, including the absurd rant on 'Yellow Hedgerow Dreamscape'. Also to Howard Jones (drums), Simon Vockings (electronics), Alan Duffy (lyrics) and Alex Slater (Alex Slater) who all contribute to these recordings.

'The Cross' which appeared on the original CD edition was replaced by the track 'Out' (from 1987) on the vinyl edition.
The version of 'Radioactive Toy' here is the original cassette version as opposed to the re-recorded and extended version on 'On The Sunday Of Life...'. 'Mute' is a newer mix to the one on the cassette. 'An Empty Box' had not appeared on either cassette but is another recording from the same period.
Note that the vinyl edition corrects some factual errors and therefore dates some of the material back to 1984.

This CD EP is a companion release to the 'Up The Downstair' Album and contains further music taken from the same recording sessions.

During the sessions for 'Up The Downstair' a lot more music was recorded than was actually used on the album. In addition 2 tracks were completed too late to be considered for the album. 'Staircase Infinities' contains 3 outtakes from the album and 2 tracks recorded shortly afterwards. It should be considered as the missing tracks from the originally intended double album of 'Up The Downstair' which would also have included an edit of the first 2 phases of 'Voyage 34'.

Wake As Gun I/II: This song was demoed in various incarnations. It always sounded like it should be a part of something bigger and longer but I never found a happy home for it. At one stage it was part of another 'Signify' unreleased track 'Cryogenics' (never recorded but performed live once at the Roadmenders, Northampton – anybody have a tape of that show?)

Hallogallo/Signify: 'Signify' was supposed to be P.T. play Krautrock, so much so that the demo actually starts off as a faithful (reasonably) cover version of the Neu! Classic 'Hallogallo' (one of my top 5 desert island discs) – however clearly something went horribly wrong about 3½ minutes in and 'Signify' was born

Waiting: My original demo

Smiling Not Smiling: Not used either

Neural Rust: Later reborn as 'The Sound Of No-One Listening'. Richard Barbieri thought this sounded like a seventies spy theme so while I was trying to work on the drums with Chris he was jumping around the studio control room performing TV stunts and Starsky + Hutch impressions. He was probably right though – I think it's the funky wah-wah guitar that does it.

Sever Tomorrow (or just Sever as it was to become): The demo version – seems slightly mellow + more melancholic than the album version...it's certainly slower, like most of my demos.

Door To The River: This is a track that was originally improvised in the studio + then "recomposed" later (or decomposed). The piano, lead gtr and major processed bass were added later. Intended as an EP track (it still could be)

Insignificance: This is pure improvisation – just me, Colin + Chris, extracted from a 45 minute long jam recorded late one night at The Doghouse in Henley. The basic backing track for 'Intermediate Jesus' comes from the same jam.

Nine Cats: Not strictly speaking a 'Signify' outtake of course. This 'On The Sunday ...' LP track gets more than a few requests at gigs. Unfortunately the band don't play an arrangement of it, but bowing to audience pressure in Italy (late '95) I played it twice as an acoustic number. It sounded ok so I recorded it like this thinking it might be suitable as an EP track.

This is a compilation of improvisations recorded during the Signify sessions, released as a double 10" only in a limited edition of 1 000 copies. It was later re-released as a CD version, with two extra tracks from the same sessions that previously appeared on the Insignificance tape. The first copies (around 500-1 000) had a wrong sticker on it dating the demos back to 1995/1966, instead of 1995/1996. The Digipak reissue on Snapper contains the same music as the Delerium version, but was remastered.

These improvisations were recorded during the sessions for 'Signify' and were originally issued as a limited edition double 10 inch vinyl of 1 000 copies in 1998 by Chromatic/Delerium Records. This CD edition contains 2 additional tracks which were recorded during the same sessions. 'Door To The River' is the last section of the improvisation recorded in Cambridge on 13th July 1995, but unlike the rest of the music it was overdubbed and reconstructed in the studio shortly afterwards. The track 'Insignificance' is the missing piece that bridged 'Intermediate Jesus' and 'Metanoia II' in the original 4th March 1996 recording.

Stupid Dream

WIKIPEDIA

29 March 1999

Discogs

The fifth studio album represented, along with 'Lightbulb Sun' and 'Recordings', a transitional period, moving away from the earlier work in instrumental and psychedelic music, but before they took a more metal direction in 2002 onwards. SW said the album deals with his own personal insecurities and feelings and the usual singer-songwriter stuff, because he believed the most relatable and affecting lyrics were from a personal point of view.

VOYAGE 34
SIXTY THREE MINUTES AND TWENTY SIX SECONDS
What is Voyage 34 & who are Porcupine Tree?
Here are some of the more frequently asked questions.

HOW SHOULD PORCUPINE TREE BE USED?
WHAT ARE THE 5 LEVELS OF VOYAGE 34?
WHAT ARE THE SEXUAL VISIONS OF PORCUPINE TREE?
WHAT ARE THE SET AND SETTINGS OF VOYAGE 34?
SHOULD ANYONE BE ALLOWED TO GO ON VOYAGE 34?
DOES PORCUPINE TREE CAUSE HALLUCINATIONS?
HOW LONG DOES VOYAGE 34 LAST?
IS PORCUPINE TREE HABIT FORMING?
WHAT EFFECTS DOES VOYAGE 34 HAVE?
DOES PORCUPINE TREE POSE A DANGER?
DOES PORCUPINE TREE CAUSE INSANITY?
ARE THERE SUBSTITUTES BEING SOLD AS PORCUPINE TREE?

All 4 phases (originally issued across 2 EPs) have been remixed, remastered and compiled onto one 65 minute CD titled 'Voyage 34 – The Complete Trip'. The CD comes with a full colour 16 page Carl Glover booklet illustrating the various stages of Brian's trip.

There are two different versions with different bar code (5032966097423 and 60438846862), different swirls pattern printed on the CD (white only and blue / white) and slightly different material used for booklet.

All titles by Steven Wilson except 'Buying New Soul', 'Untitled' and 'Ambulance Chasing' by Barbieri/Edwin/Maitland/Wilson, all tracks recorded and mixed by SW 1998 – 2000.
String arrangements on 'Even Less' by Chris Thorpe and SW
Studios: No Man's Land / Foel Studio, Wales (assisted by Dave Anderson) / New Rising (assisted by Mark Daghorn) / The Orange Asylum / Cedar Arts Centre, Derby.

The album is mainly compiled from tracks issued on singles during the Stupid Dream/Lightbulb Sun era, but also contains one new song 'Buying New Soul' (a fairly long piece recorded in March 2000) and two previously unissued outtakes which were completed in November – 'Access Denied' and 'Oceans Have No Memory' (SW's demo version of the latter appeared on the B-side of the 'Piano Lessons' 7 inch, but this is a new band version).
Buying New Soul: Previously unreleased. Recorded 15th March 2000 at Foel Studio, Wales. Vocal overdub and mix at No Man's Land
Access Denied: Previously unreleased. Demoed during 'Lightbulb Sun' writing sessions. This version was recorded and mixed October – November 2000
Cure For Optimism: Previously appeared on 'Shesmovedon' CD Single. Performed by Steven Wilson at No Man's Land, July 1999
Untitled: Previously appeared on 'Shesmovedon' CD Single. Improvised live at Foel Studio, Wales on 15th March 2000.
Disappear: Previously appeared on '4 Chords That Made A Million' CD Single. Recorded during 'Lightbulb Sun' sessions November 1999 – February 2000
Ambulance Chasing: Previously appeared on 'Piano Lessons' CD Single. Recorded during 'Stupid Dream' sessions January – November 1998. String arrangement by SW and Chris Thorpe. Performed by East of England Orchestra, conducted by Nicholas Kok.
In Formaldehyde: Previously appeared on '4 Chords That Made A Million' CD Single. Recorded during 'Lightbulb Sun' sessions November 1999 – February 2000.
Even Less: Previously unreleased full length version. Recorded during 'Stupid Dream' sessions January – November 1998. First part previously appeared on 'Stupid Dream' album, second part previously appeared on 'Stranger By the Minute' CD Single.
Oceans Have No Memory: Previously unreleased. Demoed during 'Stupid Dream' writing sessions. SW demo version appeared on B-side of 'Piano Lessons' 7 inch single. This version recorded and mixed October – November 2000.

Transmission IV – Moonloop EP

December 2001

This fourth and final Transmission PT information service release (only available to subscribers) contains a complete improvisation from 1994, part of which was used as the basis for 'The Sky Moves Sideways' era track 'Moonloop'.

Re-issued on 12" vinyl and CD in 2006 by Delerium Records, 500 copies on white vinyl, 500 copies on black vinyl, 99 copies on clear vinyl and 1 000 CD copies.

Colin Edwin – Bass Guitar
Chris Maitland – Drums
Steven Wilson – Guitar, Keyboards, Samples

Guests:

Markus Butler – Harmonica

Rick Edwards – Percussion

1. Moonloop (Unedited Improvisation)

40:07

Written by Edwards, Edwin, Maitland, Wilson

Recorded at the Doghouse, Henley on 28th June 1994 by Markus Butler.

Additional overdubs and mix at No Man's Land on 30th June 1994 by SW.

Apart from some differences in the cover artwork (the original is a gloss/shiny sleeve, the writing and the reproduction of the moon is smaller, the moon on the original EP contains traces of black, where the Delerium release is only white and the cover is matt finish) and the fact, that the original EP clearly states "NOT FOR SALE, PROMOTIONAL USE ONLY", the 2006 reissue is a reproduction of the originally issued fan club edition, which was released 2001 and which was limited to 500 copies. The reissue has also been remastered by Steven Wilson.

Stars Die – The Delerium Years 1991-1997

Throughout most of the recording sessions for The Sky Moves Sideways the plan was that the album would contain only the title track as one 50 minute long piece of music. A version of this length was never completed, but the alternate version here is a work in progress mix containing some music that was eventually cut from the final album, as well as an earlier set of lyrics.

The recording on this CD is taken from a live broadcast for Polish radio program III, Warszawa in studio im. Agnieszki Osieckiej on April 6th 2001. Also in the studio during the broadcast was an invited audience who helped to make the atmosphere on the night and on this recording so special. This single CD accommodates the entire performance with the exception of Tinto Brass. All of the music was recorded to 32 track digital tape and remixed at No Man's Land in June 2001.

This CD features the entire performance with the exception of 'Tinto Brass' which would have necessitated a double CD, and which is already available in the form of two other official live versions.

'Warszawa' was released in Poland as well. It was imported and a special SW handwriting sticker thanking the Polish audience in Polish was put on the shrink-wrap.

On the 4th October 2007 Porcupine Tree arrived for an in-store performance and signing session at Park Avenue CDs in Orlando, Florida, with 200 fans also in attendance. Although it was originally planned that the full band would play, lack of space dictated that it was only the 2 guitarists / singers Steven Wilson and John Wesley who delivered an impromptu performance, including many songs rarely (if ever) played by the band, making for a very special and intimate show. Fortunately this one-off performance was captured by a remote recording facility and the complete 8 song, 33 minute show is now being released in a Digipak sleeve created by photographer Lasse Hoile and designer Carl Glover.

PTDWNLD 011 is also used for the digital release of 'Nil Recurring' EP.

Ilosaarirock

March 2009

Discogs

Ilosaarirock is the complete 75 minute performance from the Ilosaarirock festival in Finland in 2007, considered by the band to be one of the best concerts from the Fear of a Blank Planet tour. The recording of the concert has been remixed from the multi-tracks made by national Finnish radio to the usual high standard associated with PT live releases. Although it contains a few familiar favorites, most of the concert consists of tracks from the then recent album, and this is the first time that live versions of the Fear of a Blank Planet songs have been officially released. This CD was sent to all Residents of a Blank Planet members.

Yellow Hedgerow Dreamscape (Remastered Edition)

May 2013

A newly remastered and repackaged edition of the very earliest experimental recordings that SW made under the name of Porcupine Tree. The music here was originally released on cassette tapes in 1989-91, then compiled and reissued as a limited CD in 1994, and later on vinyl with one track substituted. This new CD edition stays with the revised 1999 vinyl tracklisting. Featuring new artwork and design by Carl Glover, the disc comes in a 6 panel Digipak and also includes a booklet with sleeve notes and information about the original cassette releases.

Throughout most of the recording sessions for The Sky Moves Sideways the plan was that the album would contain only the title track as one 50 minute long piece of music. A version of this length was never completed, but the alternate version here is a work in progress mix containing some music that was eventually cut from the final album, as well as an earlier set of lyrics.

Pure Narcotic

19 March 2020

A limited 180g blue vinyl release collecting Porcupine Tree's final recordings to date. These songs were performed as a 5 song acoustic set at the band's final show at the Royal Albert Hall in October 2010. Due to technical issues the band elected to make studio recordings of the songs the way they had been performed on the night.

These songs were performed as a 5 song acoustic set at the band's final show at the Royal Albert Hall in October 2010. When the Octane Twisted live album was put together in 2012, the plan was to include several recordings from the RAH show, but the acoustic set was found to have too many technical issues. Instead the band elected to make studio recordings of the songs the way they had been performed on the night. Unfortunately work was not completed in time to be included on the album after all, and the recording was shelved until now.

Note by Steven Wilson (2010):

Recorded on 22nd January 1997, this was a simple acoustic guitar / voice demo recorded live with just one piano overdub. It never went any further, but the lyrics were recycled for 'Don't Hate Me' (from Porcupine Tree's 'Stupid Dream' album) later that year. This was previously available a few years ago as an MP3 download from the PT website, but here it is in full resolution.

1. Disappear (April 1997 Demo)

6:25

Written by Steven Wilson
Recorded by SW in 1997

Note by Steven Wilson 2001:

The song 'Disappear' was demoed many times between 1997-99. The band rehearsed it, but it never seemed to be quite right and I kept adding more and more sections until the arrangement and structure became more important than the song. Finally we stripped it right down during the 'Lightbulb Sun' sessions, although it still got voted off the album! Fans of the more progressive aspect of the band may prefer this demo version.

Note by Steven Wilson 2010:

This song was written in 1997 and demoed several times, before finally being recorded by Porcupine Tree in 2000 (that version is currently available on the Recordings album). This much earlier version from April 1997 is the second time I had demoed it - it sounds good to me now, but at the time I felt these early attempts were needlessly complicating what was at heart quite a simple song, so they never made it past the demo stage. This was one of 2 versions previously issued on a 7 inch single that came as bonus with the 3LP vinyl edition of Coma Divine.

This is a work in progress rough mix before vocals and final overdubs were added. According to SW, it was a guide mix done while they were still working on overdubs in the studio with Paul Northfield, so Paul must have mixed it.

This download comprises a complete 2 hour live performance from the Fear of a Blank Planet tour. The show was recorded and mixed to the usual PT standards in order to provide material for a planned live album, but when the decision was taken to film much of the same repertoire in Holland for a major DVD release instead, the Atlanta recording ended up back in the vault.

PT have now decided to make it available in complete form as a download only release in order to raise funds for Mick Karn's family. Although the repertoire is similar to that on the Anesthetize DVD, the performance has its own atmosphere, and also includes the first ever officially released live recording of 'A Smart Kid'.

1. Godfearing (Demo 2001-03?)

4:56

Note by Steven Wilson:

I found this on an old computer – it's a demo for either the 'In Absentia' or 'Deadwing' albums, something that never got used – I can't be totally sure because while it shares lyrical themes with the songs on 'In Absentia', one of the melodies seems to relate to another piece from 'Deadwing' era. I don't remember too much about it, other than I guess it wasn't good enough to get any further than this. Rescued from the abyss, so I only have a compressed audio file of this one, sorry about that.

Voyage 34 (Nags Head 4/12/1993)

Note by Steven Wilson:

It's mind blowing for me to realise that it is almost exactly 20 years since Porcupine Tree made their first ever live appearance, at a small club called the Nag's Head in High Wycombe, UK on the 4th December 1993. To commemorate the anniversary here is a recording from the archives of the first song played at that first ever show, the Van Der Graaf Generator / Dead Can Dance sampling, David Gilmour meets The Orb fusion of Voyage 34 (years before he did actually collaborate with The Orb!), the birth of PT as a band and a performing entity. It was recorded straight from the mixing desk so the balance is a bit strange, but actually considering how nervous we must have all been, it's not bad at all.

Note by Steven Wilson:

As previously announced the forthcoming vinyl compilation LP 'Transience' will feature a new recording of 'Lazarus', originally recorded by Porcupine Tree for the 'Deadwing' album in 2004.

To mark the release of this new version you can listen to my original demo of the song. This was actually the first of two demos I made of 'Lazarus', and it features a very different middle 8, subsequently rewritten for the second demo and final album recording.

'Lazarus' was one of several songs that were based on a film script that I was working on at the time with my friend Mike Bennion, and the David mentioned in the song is a central character in that script.

16 March 2020

Exactly 14 years to the day after the band's first ever live performance (also available here), PT played at the Palladium in Köln, Germany. The show was filmed by a local TV station and 7 songs totalling approximately 62 minutes were later selected for broadcast. This is the audio soundtrack to the broadcast, as mixed by SW.

There is some overlap with the Ilosaarirock show from earlier in the year, but also some unexpected forays into the back catalogue in the form of 'Waiting' and 'The Sky Moves Sideways'.

BBC Radio Session 13th April 2007

21 March 2020

BBC radio session recorded at Maida Vale Studios, London on 13th April 2007 during promotion for the 'Fear Of A Blank Planet' album. Taken directly from the session tape, this is the complete 30 minute set the band recorded. However, as far as we can ascertain, despite the session being aired at least twice with variations in track selection, 'Blackest Eyes' was never broadcast, so it makes its debut here.

First Live Performance 4th Dec 1993

16 March 2020

An almost complete recording of the first ever live performance of Porcupine Tree. After the newly assembled band line-up had rehearsed for one week, they played 4 times in quick succession. This nervous but spirited show at a sold-out Nag's Head club in High Wycombe was the first, followed by a BBC radio session, and modestly attended shows in London and Coventry.

The recording was made directly to DAT from the mixing board, so as with any board tape the balance is not perfect, but the quality is excellent. 'Radioactive Toy', 'Up the Downstair (Extract)', and 'Not Beautiful Anymore' were previously included on a limited cassette/vinyl album 'Spiral Circus', which also contained music from the BBC session and London shows.

Recording made my Mike Bearpark onto a Casio DA-2 DAT machine plugged directly into the mixing desk. Restored by SW 2020. 'Fadeaway' was also performed at the show, between 'Radioactive Toy' and 'Up The Downstair', but due to issues with the source tape could not be included here.

Note by Peter Clemons, October 2019:

The day itself was cold and blustery. I arrived at the High Wycombe venue with enough spare time to visit the merchandise table. I bought an album from it and returned it to my car for safe keeping. The room itself was up a flight of stairs and the first thing I noticed was that it was a period styled room. Tudor type in design. I couldn't help but notice that it contained a lot of old timber. The rumour was that the gig had sold out, and clearly it had drawn people from far and wide. I decided I had better get myself a decent viewing position close to the stage. As the crowd grew, so you could sense, did expectations.

From my vantage point Richard Barbieri was directly in front of me surrounded by keyboards on at least two sides, possibly three. Colin Edwin was on my far right. Chris Maitland, who was almost hidden from view, was at the back of the stage and Steven Wilson front and centre. From memory the gig was, understandably, all slightly edgy. Steven played almost the entire concert with his head bowed and his long hair hanging. It all made for what I thought was a great image. Little did I realise that Steven was extremely nervous. Richard showed no real emotion throughout. He was very stern faced. It was only Colin that had any expression at all as he seemed to wear a partial smile throughout the entire gig.

I cannot recall very much interaction between band and audience, but as the first moments of 'Voyage 34' rang out, the band came across as highly committed to the task in hand. This was undoubtedly an extremely competent, committed and enjoyable debut. I came away from that gig hugely impressed, feeling it was a resounding success.

I am not surprised that this is being written. Not necessarily by myself but certainly by someone who attended that first gig. I just always knew it would be. Such, was its importance.

Los Angeles 30th July 2003

01 May 2020

In the Summer of 2003, Porcupine Tree teamed up with Opeth for a co-headlining tour of North America, performing 15 shows in Canada and USA. This recording captures the band's set at the House of Blues in Los Angeles on 30th July. The band went on first on this particular evening, playing a set of around 90 minutes. Mixed for the first time from the multitrack recording, this is the complete performance with the exception of second encore 'Trains' which suffered from issues due to a guitar string break!

Recorded by Chris Thorpe. Restored and mixed in 2020.

Artwork by Lasse Hoile

When Porcupine Tree made their first official live album, they decided to record their 3 night stand at Rome's Frontiera club in order to capture as much repertoire as possible. The original live album was almost entirely drawn from the third and final night, but this new selection of material comes from the second night. As well as alternate versions of 'Signify', 'Dislocated Day' (incomplete but fun because of an impromptu drum solo!), and 'Radioactive Toy', this selection includes several songs that were not chosen to be on 'Coma Divine'. Most notable among these is an unreleased group composition 'Cryogenics' that was prepared especially for the concert recording, but didn't make the cut and was subsequently never played again by the band.

Note that the original 'Coma Divine' album was subject to a fair amount of repairs and overdubs to bring it up to a high audio standard. These new selections are exactly as recorded on the night so there are some technical and performance shortcomings which we hope won't spoil your listening enjoyment!

Taken from the first date in a run of 4 UK shows in November 1994, which short though it was qualifies as the first ever Porcupine Tree tour. Almost one year on from their first ever live performance the band is beginning to sound confident, although this is still only show number 7 and the audience is a modest 60 people.

For this tour Porcupine Tree's set is almost entirely instrumental, with 2 tracks from the forthcoming album 'The Sky Moves Sideways' newly added to the repertoire.

This restored desk recording includes 5 tracks ('Up The Downstair' and 'Always Never' were also in the set but for some reason not recorded). As with most desk tapes the instrument balance is uneven - what was coming from the stage (the bass and guitar amplifiers especially) was not so present in the front of house mix.

A few days after filming the concert in The Netherlands that would later be released as 'Anesthetize', Porcupine Tree wound up a nine date mini tour (and the 'Fear Of A Blank Planet' album cycle), with this hometown show. At least two of the band are sick and there are some rough edges, but perhaps with the knowledge that the film is in the can, this spirited performance has a looser and more relaxed feel to other shows with similar repertoire from this period.

This is the complete 2 hour concert in high resolution 96k/24 bit audio.

The Sky Moves Sideways (1st Promo MC)

1994

Ultra-rare first pre-release promotional copy tape of 'The Sky Moves Sideways' from Delerium. This tape contains 'Men Of Wood' (with Chris Maitland on drums) instead of 'Moonloop', which was intended for 'Up The Downstair', but was dropped from that album (also later from TSMS).

UK Delerium - none

Side One
1. The Sky Moves Sideways Part One	20:19
2. Dislocated Day	5:25
Side Two
1. Moon Touches Your Shoulder	5:42
2. Prepare Yourself	1:55
3. Men Of Wood	3:44
4. The Sky Moves Sideways Part Two	16:47

All titles by Wilson (except 'Men Of Wood' by Wilson / Duffy) and published by Hit and Run Music (Publishing) Ltd.

Programmed, produced and recorded by Steven Wilson at No Man's Land June / July 1993 and Jan-March 1994.

There is also a version of this promo release with the text "across" the cassette (landscape) as opposed to the above version and additional credits:

The band on 'The Sky Moves Sideways' is as follows:
 Steven Wilson - Guitars, Keyboards, Tapes, Vocals
 Richard Barbieri - Keyboards and Electronics
 Colin Edwin - Bass
 Chris Maitland - Percussion, Hum-wah
 Suzanne Barbieri - Vocals
 On the 4 short pieces, Steven plays all the instruments.

The Sky Moves Sideways (2nd Promo MC)

1994

Ultra-rare second pre-release promotional copy tape of 'The Sky Moves Sideways' from Delerium. Over a minute and a half was cut out of TSMS Part One (the 'Wire The Drum' intro) and 'Men Of Wood', even though it is mentioned in the credits, was dropped from the tracklist. The version of 'Moonloop' is a shorter version of the 18:04 version released on the 'Moonloop EP'.

UK Delerium – none

| 1. The Sky Moves Sideways Part One | 18:37 |
| 2. Dislocated Day | 5:25 |
| 3. Moon Touches Your Shoulder | 5:42 |
| 4. Prepare Yourself | 1:55 |

Side B

- | | |
|------------------------------------|-------|
| 1. Moonloop (Album Version) | 17:21 |
| 2. The Sky Moves Sideways Part Two | 16:47 |

All titles by Wilson (except 'Men Of Wood' by Wilson / Duffy) and published by Hit and Run Music (Publishing) Ltd.

Programmed, produced and recorded by Steven Wilson at No Man's Land June / July 1993 and Jan-March 1994.

The credits differ concerning the recording dates from the official release, which states:

Produced, recorded and mixed by Steven Wilson at No Man's Land, June '93 – July '94. Additional recording at the Doghouse with the assistance of Markus Butler.)

As far as I know, 'Moonloop' was recorded at the Doghouse, so I guess the credits on the cassette are simply copied from the 1st promo MC. Also the reference of 'Men Of Wood', which is not on this release supports this theory.

| 2. Waiting (Phase two) | 6:14 |
| 3. Strontium 90 – Visions Of The Night | 2:55 |

Samples from Porcupine Tree/Strontium 90

It was 20 years ago today, that Mike Howlett of Gong brought together Sting, Stewart Copeland and Andy Summers to form Strontium 90. The album includes studio cuts such as the original demo of 'Every Little Thing She Does Is Magic' as well as live tracks from the May 1977 Gong Reunion in France. The album titled 'Police Academy' is available July 29th on Pangaea Records.

Porcupine Tree are the cutting edge of modern progressive music, pushing back the envelope of both rock and ambient trance genres, slipping effortlessly between pop sensibilities and experimental textures with a dark cerebral undercurrent. 'Signify' will be released August 12th on Ark 21 Records.

Strontium 90 was the name of a short-lived 1977 British band with members Mike Howlett (bass, vocals), Sting (bass, vocals), Stewart Copeland (drums), and Andy Summers (guitar). The band is most notable for introducing Summers to Sting and Copeland, as this trio would go on to massive success as The Police.

Lightbulb Sun (Mixes 6/2/00)

2000

Promo CD-R issued by Snapper Music with minor differences compared to the regular release of 'Lightbulb Sun' (see also note by SW).

UK Snapper Music – none

Same as regular CD release with minor differences, 'Russia On Ice' is splitted into two tracks (Track 9 and 10), therefore this CD has 11 tracks instead of 10.

Note by Steven Wilson:

The 'Lightbulb Sun' mixes CD-R issue was prior to final mastering and sequencing, so there are minor differences in the way the tracks fade and link together (such as the fact that the two halves of 'Russia On Ice' have separated track IDs).

The Porcupine Tree Delerium EP

June 2001

A CD EP given away with the June 2001 issue of Greek music magazine 'Pop + Rock', this was intended as a sampler from the forthcoming 'Stars Die – The Delerium Years 1991 - 1997' compilation.

GR NON+POK – EP 0016 [Not For Sale]

Steven Wilson – Vocals, Guitar, Keyboards (all instruments on 2)
Richard Barbieri – Keyboards (except on 'Stars Die')
Colin Edwin – Bass
Chris Maitland – Drums, Harmony Vocals

1. Stars Die	5:04
2. Radioactive Toy	10:00
3. Disappear	3:37
4. Signify	3:27

All titles by Steven Wilson.

Compiled by A Burnt Hippie and created by Linton Samuel Dawson
ARTwork: Petros Paraschis

The title of the EP is erroneous since 'Disappear' is taken from the Kscope/Snapper release 'Recordings'. Signify is also not on the 'Stars Die' box set, meaning that this EP's status as promotion for the box set is very dubious. Only 2 out of 4 tracks are actually from the box set!
The band had little input into the selection of tracks or artwork (which is mostly taken from the inside of the Signify CD booklet).

Deadwing (French Promo)

2005

Promo CD-R issued by WEA Music in France, probably a misprint due a lot of typos (see notes).

FR WEA Music – none

Same as regular release (with 'Shesmovedon' as a bonus track)

Lots of typos on this release:
 - band name is only "Porcupine"
 - album name is "Tree Deadwing"
 - track 8 is "The Start Of Something", track 9 is "Beautiful"
 - therefore 11 tracks are listed, instead of just 10

Counterfeits/Pirates/Fakes

Radio Active EP

Identifiable by the green background (instead of grey), the words "FOR RADIO BROADCAST ONLY" and the lack of any copyright notices from Delerium on the CD label.

Yellow Hedgerow Dreamscape

Identifiable by the different back cover (black background instead of Asian monk) and the "Bravo Records" logo on the bottom left corner of the back cover.

Yellow Hedgerow Dreamscape (2007/2008 Fake)

The new counterfeits (2007 and 2008) are very professional made counterfeit including a fake matrix number.

The "2007 version" is not too hard to identify when looking for details: slightly different front, less detail on the back, disc has different printing quality, a different font is used on the disc and in the booklet.

The "2008 version" has perfect copied artwork, only the disc itself differs from the original: disc has different printing quality, different font for the matrix number.

Signify

Identifiable by the words "Limited Edition" on various areas (e.g. bottom right corner of the front cover and on the CD label). The CD label also contains the words "Porcupine Tree (with Richard Barbieri)" and "Japan Family" and there are some Cyrillic words in a rectangular box on the back cover (label/catalogue number is LIMECD CJFCD 10990504).

2IN1 – The Sky Moves Sideways / 4 Chords That Made A Million

CD from Grammy Records (1345 POTR) that contains 'The Sky Moves Sideways' and the CD Single '4 Chords That Made A Million' on one single disc.

Fuse The Sky

Green coloured 6" flexi disc from Budkon (#5235) with an excerpt of 'Fuse The Sky' (2:05).

Nine Cats

Blue coloured 6" flexi disc from Budkon (#5236) with an excerpt of 'Nine Cats' (2:03).

Bornlivedie

Yellow coloured 6" flexi disc from Budkon (#5255) with an excerpt of 'Bornlivedie' (1:55).

Colourflow In Mind

Yellow coloured 6" flexi disc from Budkon (#5260) with an excerpt of 'Colourflow In Mind' (2:04).

"Light Mass Prayers"

Red coloured 6" flexi disc from Budkon (#5275) with an excerpt of "Light Mass Prayers" (2:12).

Every Home Is Wired

Yellow coloured 6" flexi disc from Budkon (#5615) with an excerpt of 'Every Home Is Wired' (2:10).

Smiling Not Smiling

Red coloured 6" flexi disc from Budkon (#5738) with an excerpt of 'Smiling Not Smiling' (2:03).

Prepare Yourself

Green coloured 6" flexi disc from Budkon (#5795) with an excerpt of 'Prepare Yourself' (1:53).

Moonloop Part One

Blue coloured 6" flexi disc from Budkon (#5813) with an excerpt of 'Moonloop' (2:07).

Moonloop Part Two

Red coloured 6" flexi disc from Budkon (#5814) with an excerpt of 'Moonloop' (2:07).

The Sky Moves Sideways (Phase One) 1

Green coloured 6" flexi disc from Budkon (#5844) with an excerpt of 'The Sky Moves Sideways (Phase One)' (2:14).

The Sky Moves Sideways (Phase One) 2

Blue coloured 6" flexi disc from Budkon (#5845) with an excerpt of 'The Sky Moves Sideways (Phase One)' (2:01).

The Sky Moves Sideways (Phase One) 3

Red coloured 6" flexi disc from Budkon (#5846) with an excerpt of 'The Sky Moves Sideways (Phase One)' (2:14).

Lips Of Ashes

Red coloured 6" flexi disc from Budkon (#5943) with an excerpt of 'Lips Of Ashes' (2:09).

Even Less I

Red coloured 6" flexi disc from Budkon (#6658) with an excerpt of 'Even Less' (2:04).

Even Less II

Yellow coloured 6" flexi disc from Budkon (#6659) with an excerpt of 'Even Less' (2:09).

Orchidia

Blue coloured 6" flexi disc from Budkon (#6790) with an excerpt of 'Orchidia' (2:09).

The Moon Touches Your Shoulder

Clear 6" flexi disc from Budkon (#6864) with an excerpt of 'The Moon Touches Your Shoulder' (2:06). Note that the cover states 'Pain' as track title.

Voyage 34

Easy to recognize, as there are many differences to the regular release: cyrillic words on the bottom center of the back cover and the catalogue number (PTCD 11000505) is written on the bottom left and on the CD spine in apricot colour.

Stupid Dream Demos 1998/99

Easy to recognize, as there was never an official release with this title, however there is a promo cassette with demos from the 'Stupid Dream' era. CD issued in Japan from Captain Sounds Records (CSR 030).

Stupid Dream

Identifiable by the green words "PORCUPINE TREE STUPID DREAM" on top of the front cover and the lack of any copyright notices from Kscope on the back cover and CD label (matrix number: JPCD 990610 or GP-99 GT 000182).

Metanoia

Identifiable by the words "Porcupine Tree Metanoia" on the top right corner and "Limited Edition" on the bottom left corner of the front cover, some Cyrillic words on the back cover and the lack of any copyright notices from Delerium on the back cover and CD label. The CD label uses the front image as background (matrix number: LDR 2307).

The Sky Moves Sideways

Identifiable by the "2000 Fruit Gum" logo on the bottom left corner of the back cover and a complete black background on the CD spine (catalogue number: FCCD 233161-2).

Lightbulb Sun (Special Edition)

Identifiable by the fact that it uses the background image of the paperboard slipcase of the Snapper Limited Tour Edition (blue) on the back cover, instead of the orange. Also wrong text ("Porcupine Tree_Lightbulb Sun Special Edition") on the CD spine (matrix number: Disc 1: GP-00GT 000005).

Lightbulb Sun

Identifiable by the fact that it uses a white CD with the cover printed on it with no additional information or copyright notices.

Lightbulb Sun (Promo MC)

Promo MC' from Snapper Records allegedly issued in Indonesia.

Probably a fake, as Snapper Music is not mentioned, but Snapper Records. Also Gavin Harrison is on an image on the inside of the cover, who was not a band member during the recording of 'Lightbulb Sun'.

Even Less (12" Single)

Professional vinyl fake. Contains 'Even Less (13:55)' on side A and 'A Smart Kid' (5:22) and 'Buying New Soul (6:07)' on side B. Kscope never released such a 12" single.

Access Denied (12" Single)

Professional vinyl fake. Contains 'Access Denied (3:35)' and 'Untitled' (8:53) on side A and 'Ambulance Chasing' (6:32) and 'Disappear' (3:37) on side B. Kscope never released such a 12" single.

In Absentia (1CD Edition)

Identifiable by the lack of any copyright notices from Lava on the CD spine and some Cyrillic words on the bottom of the back cover (matrix number: LDR 2437).

In Absentia (2CD Edition)

Identifiable by the text "SPECIAL EUROPEAN VERSION INCLUDES Bonus CD with 6 Extra Tracks" on the bottom of the front cover (matrix number: GP-04GT-00024/1-2).

The bonus disc contains with 6 tracks while the original European release has a 3-track bonus disc containing the songs 'Drown With Me', 'Chloroform' and 'Strip the Soul (Video Edit)'. The counterfeit bonus disc contains the tracks from the European bonus disc plus '4 Chords That Made A Million', 'Disappear' and 'In Formaldehyde'.

Coma Divine

Hard to differentiate. The front and back cover are using a darker green colour than the 2003 Delerium version (matrix number: GP-00GT 000008).

On The Sunday Of Life... (Remastered Edition)

Hard to differentiate. The front and back cover are using a little bit more red instead of orange. The counterfeit comes in a jewelcase, the currently available remaster on the Snapper label (SDPCD166) comes in a Digipak (matrix number: GP-04GT-000004).

Warszawa

Slightly different front cover, the fingertips of the thumb and pinkie are not complete (matrix number: GP-05GT 000134). The counterfeit comes in a jewelcase, the currently available edition on the Snapper label (SMACD892) comes in a Digipak.

Insignificance (Promo)

Identifiable by the text "PROMO ONLY – Limited Edition Promo CD" and "Radio 1 Hannover, Germany" on the CD label (catalogue number: PRO-4152101). Contains the original tape version of 'Insignificance' and not the remastered CD version. Two additional versions exists with a white label on CD, first has the same catalogue number (PRO-4152101), second has a slightly different one (PRO-1535-A03).

The Sky Moves Sideways (Expanded 2CD Edition)

Identifiable by the fact that it uses the background images of the cardboard slipcase of the Snapper edition on the back cover (matrix numbers of the counterfeits are GP-04GT 000007/1 and GP-04GT 000007/2). The counterfeit come in a jewelcases, the currently available remaster on the Snapper label (SMACD883) comes in a Digipak.

Recordings

The original version comes in a numbered cardboard slipcase, where the CD has a full white printing on the disc itself, where the counterfeit has a partly printed pink colored printing. The original jewelcase has a transparent inlay where the counterfeit has a default black/brown inlay. (PTRCD-001/01)

Signify (Remastered 2CD Edition)

Identifiable by the fact that it uses the background image of the paperboard slipcase of the Delerium edition on the back cover (matrix number are GP-03GT 000009 and GP-03GT 000010 or GP-00GT 000010).

Voyage 34 (2004 Remaster)

Hard to differentiate. The counterfeit comes in a jewelcase, the currently available remaster on the Snapper label (SDPCD167) comes in a Digipak (matrix number: GP-04GT-00023).

Stars Die

Identifiable by the gray instead of blue cover and the words "Limited Progressive" on the front cover (catalogue number: PT 0666/67). The CDs are in a jewelcase, not a Digipak.

Deadwing

Identifiable by the text "- Deadwing -" and the group name printed in black letters on the front cover (matrix number: GP-05 GT 000177).

Metanoia (Remastered)

Identifiable by the lack of any copyright notices under the tracklist from Snapper or Delerium on the back cover and CD. The CD label uses the front image as background (matrix number: GP-02 GT000352).

Moonloop (Jewelcase)

Both original releases are packaged in a dark purple PVC, screen printed bag, currently there is no Jewelcase edition of the 'Moonloop' EP.

The CD has two tracks, Part 1 (17:44) and Part 2 (21:58). Presumably the CD is recorded from the vinyl release. The catalognumber printed on the artwork is DELEC LP 999, where the repress on the Delerium label has catalog number DELEC CD 999, the original Transmission edition has no catalog number at all.

Moonloop (Digipak)

Currently there is no Digipak edition of the 'Moonloop' EP. The Digipak counterfeit has a blue printing on the disc itself, where both original releases are silver with only black text printed on it. The CD has two tracks, Part 1 (17:44) and Part 2 (21:58). Presumably the CD is recorded from the vinyl release. The catalognumber printed on the artwork is DELEC LP 999, where the repress on the Delerium label has catalog number DELEC CD 999, the original Transmission edition has no catalog number at all (matrix number: GP-07 GT000889).

Arriving Somewhere... (DVD)

At least 2 counterfeits do exist: One is easy identifiable by the fact that the counterfeit comes in a small cd-size cover while the original release is packed in a book-sized dvd Digipak with a high quality cardboard sleeve.

The other counterfeit is easy identifiable by the fact that the text is printed on the cover while the original release has the covertext is printed on a sticker on the cellophane.

Fear Of A Blank Planet

Easy to recognize as it has the title printed on the front of the booklet and no Roadrunner logo near the barcode. The original single disc edition comes with a sticker on the jewelcase, no text printed on the cover.

Also recognizable by the fact that the quality of the printing on the disc is less sharp than printing on original discs.

Fear Of A Blank Planet (Promo MC)

'Promo MC' from Roadrunner Records allegedly issued in Indonesia. It is highly probable that this is a fake.

Nil Recurring

The original version on the Transmission label (Transmission 5.1) comes in a fold-out Digipak, not in a jewelcase. The retail edition released by Peaceville Records comes in a super jewel-case (round corners) instead of a jewelcase and contains exactly the same content as the Transmission-edition. The counterfeit's printing quality of the artwork and the disc are not as detailed as the original (matrix number: GP-07 GT 001002).

Steven Wilson

One of the most eclectic and prolific artists in rock music, Steven Wilson has been writing, recording, and producing music continuously since the age of 10. A native of Hemel Hempstead in England, Steven was first exposed to music at the age of eight, when he started hearing his father listening to Pink Floyd's 'Dark Side of the Moon', and his mother to Donna Summer's 'Love to Love You Baby', two albums that were pivotal in the development of his musical direction. His father, an electrical engineer, built him a multi-track tape machine, and he began to experiment with overdubbing and developing a repertoire of production techniques. Early demo tapes started to emerge in the mid 80's while Steven was still at school, and at the end of the decade he created the two projects which gained him entry to the professional music world: Porcupine Tree and No-Man. Porcupine Tree, which explored psychedelia, progressive music, and his love of ambitious seventies music, was initially an imaginary "band" which, in reality, Steven overdubbed all the instruments himself. This even extended to early demo tapes coming with a fictional written history of the band, and biographical info about the fictitious performers. Around the same time, Steven formed No-Man, his long-term collaboration with singer Tim Bowness. Influenced by everything from ambient music to hip-hop, their early singles and albums were a mixture of dance beats and lush orchestrations. Signing to One Little Indian in the UK, and Epic in the US in 1990, they received tremendous accolades from the music press, with Singles Of The Week in Melody Maker, Sounds and Hot Press.

Meanwhile, things progressed with Porcupine Tree, whose increasing popularity was fast outpacing the imaginary pretext of an actual group. The second full-length album, Up the Downstair was released in 1993 and was praised by Melody Maker as "a psychedelic masterpiece... one of the albums of the year." This was the first album to include keyboardist Richard Barbieri and bassist Colin Edwin, albeit only as guests at this point, the album was still effectively a solo project. The next album The Sky Moves Sideways was a transitional album featuring both solo SW and band pieces, but from then on it became a full band with the addition of Chris Maitland on drums. Further albums throughout the late nineties, and extensive touring resulted in a string of indie chart placings and critical acclaim, many fans hailing them as the Pink Floyd of the nineties.

In 2001 Porcupine Tree was signed to US label Lava Records, under the auspices of Atlantic Records. Now with the support of a major label, and featuring new drummer Gavin Harrison, In Absentia saw the light of day in 2002, featuring a heavier sound than all the group's previous works. It charted in many European countries and remains one of the top-selling Porcupine Tree albums. It was also their first album to be released in 5.1 Surround Sound,, and won the "Best Made-For-Surround Title" award for the Surround Music Awards 2004. Its 2005 follow-up, 'Deadwing' was inspired by a film script written by Steven and film-maker Mike Bennion, and became the first Porcupine Tree album to chart around the world. The album won "Album of the Year" at the 'Classic Rock' magazine awards, and its surround version received the "Best Made-For-Surround Title" once again. The following year the band released Fear of a Blank Planet, which was nominated for a US Grammy, and won several polls as the best album of the year. Their tenth studio album The Incident was released in late 2009, and became their highest charting album to date, again received a Grammy nomination, and was followed by another extensive tour that included arena shows and concluded with sold out shows at Radio City Music Hall in New York, and the Royal Albert Hall in London. 2010 ended with their status as arguably the biggest "underground" band in the world cemented.

Starting in 2003 Steven quietly started to release music under his own name, in the form of a series of two track CD singles on his own label Headphone Dust, each one featuring a cover version and an original SW song. The choice and treatment of the cover versions was unpredictable, as it featured songs by Alanis Morissette, Abba, The Cure, Momus, Prince, and Donovan. Stylistically these cover versions allowed Steven to expand his musical palette into everything from electronica, noise music, and stripped down acoustic balladry. This led to his decision to record his first solo album of original music.

Between January and August of 2008, Steven began recording material that would comprise Insurgentes. Comprising 10 new tracks that range from ballads and anthems to all-out industrial noise assaults, the dark, cinematic, and richly textured disc represents two years' worth of creative output and numerous recording sessions worldwide in studios from Mexico City to Japan to Israel. The whole process was visually documented by film-maker Lasse Hoile, and the work in progress Insurgentes film features footage of the recording sessions, surreal sequences, and interviews with Steven and many other musicians about what it means to be a musician in the age of iPods and download culture.

A second solo album Grace For Drowning was recorded in 2010-11 and released in September 2011 on CD, vinyl and Blu-ray formats as a double disc designed to be listened to as two single albums, with the individual parts named Deform to Form and a Star and Like Dust I Have Cleared From My Eye. The album received massive critical acclaim, and charted all over the world, notably charting in the top 40 in UK, Holland, Germany, and reaching the Polish top 10. It was nominated at the 54th Grammy Awards for Best Surround Sound Album. Shortly before the release of the album SW also announced his first solo tour, in Europe and North America. The first leg of the tour took place in October and November 2011 and contained songs from both Insurgentes and Grace for Drowning. The tour featured quadrophonic sound and many new visual elements. A second leg of tour took place in April-May 2012, this time also taking in South America, and including a brand new 12 minute piece Luminol, which had been written specifically for the new band line up to play. A live DVD/Blu-ray recorded in Mexico titled Get All You Deserve was released on 25 September 2012, again charting all over Europe (number 2 in Germany, number 5 in UK).

At the same time that Steven was working on Grace For Drowning, he was also working on a collaboration album with his long term friend, the leader of Swedish band Opeth Mikael Åkerfeldt. Their collaboration was eventually released in May 2012 under the name of Storm Corrosion, and going against all expectation was an extremely atmospheric and darkly orchestrated album, very influenced by both musician's love of artists such as Scott Walker and Talk Talk.

Steven has become known for the high standard of his production and is a sought-after mixer and producer. Artists he has worked with in this capacity include the Norwegian artist Anja Garbarek, Anathema, and Swedish progressive-metal band Opeth for whom he produced and/or mixed four albums. Other projects include Blackfield, a collaboration with Israeli megastar Aviv Geffen which has now produced two acclaimed albums, and Steven's drone / ambient / experimental outlet Bass Communion.

More recently Steven has become known for his 5.1 surround sound mixing, starting with his own projects, but since 2009 also for the remixing of several classic albums, notably the revamping of the King Crimson catalogue, on which Steven worked closely with band leader Robert Fripp, Jethro Tull, and several others yet unannounced projects.

In September 2012 Steven won "Guiding Light" at the "Progressive Music Awards" 2012.

Since the start of 2012 Steven has been writing and recording a third solo studio album, with the members of his touring band. Principal sessions for the album took place in Los Angeles during September 2012, with legendary producer Alan Parsons engineering. The album will be released in February 2013, followed by an extensive tour. The current line up of the band is SW, Guthrie Govan (guitar), Adam Holzman (keyboards), Theo Travis (flute / sax), Nick Beggs (bass / stick), and Marco Minnemann (drums).

Track 2 written by Steven Wilson and published by Hands Off It's Mine Publishing Ltd

'Cover Version III' is a cover of 'A Forest' by The Cure.

The 7" singles are pressed on clear vinyl and are available in both large (150 copies) and small centerhole pressings (350 copies), packaged in a stylish customized die-cut ToneFloat sleeve.

Both vinyl editions are sold out.

This third cover version departs somewhat from the unplugged format of the first two, being a more electronic treatment of the song in question.

'Cover Version IV' is a cover of 'The Guitar Lesson' by Momus.

The 7" singles are pressed on clear vinyl and are available in both large (150 copies) and small centerhole pressings (350 copies), packaged in a stylish customized die-cut ToneFloat sleeve.

Both vinyl editions are sold out.

Note by Steven Wilson:

"Today I completed Cover Version IV, and I think it's my favourite so far in the series, I'm very happy. The cover version itself is probably the most obscure yet, and may create some controversy with its subject matter, guaranteed to offend. But also very beautiful I think".

SW – August 2010:

This song was written and demoed for Porcupine Tree prior to the band recording 'In Absentia', a prolific period of writing that resulted in perhaps the best pool of songs that the band has been able to draw from for a studio album to date. But as that album developed in a heavier direction, the song didn't really fit in stylistically, so was dropped quite early on and never recorded by the band. Two years later it was included instead on the first Blackfield album under the title 'Lullaby'. The Blackfield interpretation worked really well but took the song in a very different direction, stripping it down to just voice, piano and strings, so I took the opportunity to revisit the full arrangement of the song during sessions for my first solo album 'Insurgentes'. This time the song went a lot further down the road (you can see me playing it in the film during the piano recording session at St Bartholomew's church in Brighton), but once again it didn't fit in with my more experimental ideas for the album (in many respects it just sounded too much like Porcupine Tree) so I never finished it, although I did adapt the coda section into the short instrumental album track 'Twilight Coda'.

Even though the new version was much more fully realised, I find I still prefer the original demo version from 2001, so that is the one I have decided to include here. Still, it's another part of the 'Insurgentes' story, which saw around 30 songs, both old and new, and in many different styles, considered.

Tape Experiments 1985/86

29 November 2010

Experimental archive material that was considered to be released on a free CD with initial pre-orders of the 'Insurgentes' DVD. The idea was dropped (in favour of the 'Vapour Trail Lullaby' CD single to be included instead) and these tracks were then made available as free WAV file downloads and later released physical as a vinyl only edition on the Tonefloat label.

How It All Came To Be

'Cries Of Lucia' was recorded onto 4-Track cassette machine (made by my father). Layering my voice through a tape delay machine (also home made). I think the title came from the fact that it was vaguely inspired by Luciano Berio's piece for electronics and voice 'Visage' from 1961 (also sampled part of that same Berio piece later on for the No-Man track 'Sinister Jazz'). It's also worth noting that this piece of music was part of the sonic soup that made up the very first Incredible Expanding Mindfuck track 'The Gospel According To The IEM'. 'I May Be Some Time' was recorded onto 4-track cassette machine. Very much influenced by David Bedford's 'Rime of the Ancient Mariner', a very eerie album based around organ. So lots of Farfisa Organ on this one. And vari-speeding the tape to create the queasy effects. 'Constellation' was recorded onto 4-track cassette machine. Inspired by Tangerine Dream's 'Zeit', which is the year zero of all ambient music for me. Ambient guitar with some Moog Prodigy and Siel string synthesiser overdubs. 'Them No 1' was recorded onto 4-track cassette machine. One of four pieces using Moog Prodigy and Siel String Synthesiser, with random radio transmissions mixed in. 'The Life and Times of Sigmund Freud' was recorded onto 2-track analogue tape. Made using classic music concrete techniques (as used by Karlheinz Stockhausen for example, who I was listening to a lot at this time) of dubbing and over dubbing sounds on to analogue tape and then cutting in to a lot of small pieces of tape for re-editing, sometimes as many as 9 or 10 edits per second. Very hit and miss technique that relied a lot on experimenting and keeping only what worked. I think it took about 2 weeks to finish just 4 minutes of music. The title was stolen from an early Robert Wilson performance piece (he of Einstein on the Beach fame). 'Wood Between Worlds' was performed live direct to 2-track analogue tape. Farfisa Organ through a tape delay, mixed in with sounds captured from my parent's garden using a microphone hanging outside the window. 'Seen' was recorded onto 4-track tape machine by overdubbing various layered guitars through tape delay. Probably quite influenced by John Martyn's 'Small Hours' by the sound of it.

The liner notes for this album were written by SW. Who also supplied the front cover photo (thanks). The sleeve design is somewhat inspired by Art Gnuvo's work for the amazing Kornynone record label

(Completely playable in your very home at 33 1/3 R.P.M. on any electric hifidelograph.)

The songs on this album are a compilation of 6 singles that were first released between 2003 and 2010. Each single contained a cover version and on original composition as a 'B-side' (*). At the time the series started they were the first recordings I had released under my own name, but unlike my later solo albums, which had considerable time, energy and production values put into them, the cover version singles were "quick and dirty", usually recorded in a few hours and pressed and released almost immediately, with little time for reflection or analysing what I had done. Some were recorded under professional studio circumstances, while others were done on laptops in hotel rooms. The idea was to record and release the songs quickly, like an aural diary of sorts (in fact when I started I rather over ambitiously hoped to release one very few months).

Another part of the concept behind the singles was that the songs I chose to record went unnamed, being simply listed as COVER VERSION X on the label. I liked the idea that the listener would have no preconceptions about the choice of song, or the artist that original wrote and recorded it. There was of course the possibility that they might recognise it within the first few bars, but some of my choices were unexpected and reasonably obscure songs, so it was equally likely that they would not. This would have been even more fun before the internet, since if you want to identify something now it is very easy to search online, but I figured that as long as I didn't volunteer the title then at least the very first listen would be a kind of "blindfold test". Contributing also to the mystery that even though the songs I covered were (and still are) personal favourites, I didn't see any point in making them faithful to the original versions, instead stripping some down to simple acoustic settings, or taking a more electronic approach with others. All the same I was very surprised that even after identifying them some listeners still didn't appear to be familiar with the songs by Abba, The Cure and Prince, which to me are almost standards. But then it's amazing how the era and place you grew up in can give you such a different perspective – not everyone grew up in England in the eighties as I did!

The singles were released on CD by my own Headphone Dust label, and also on 7 inch vinyl by the Dutch label ToneFloat. The CDs came first, usually within a week or two of me recording the music, but presented without any artwork. I had in mind the way 7 inch singles used to be released in plain generic bags, something which we definitely took onboard with the vinyl editions, even releasing jukebox 7 inches without the centre holes. But to complete the CD series, Cover Version VI came in a box with sleeves for all 6 singles (designed by Carl Glover), and a booklet with some portraits of me by Hajo Mueller. For this new CD edition Carl has remixed that artwork. The only change to the music has been remastering the audio slightly to try to improve the sonics, especially on some of the location recordings. Nothing has been remixed or edited. Since I didn't allow myself any time for filtering or reflecting on what I had done, not all the tracks stand up for me, but a few have turned out to be amongst my very favourite solo recordings. The very first cover version remains a personal highlight, as does the final song recorded for the project 'An End To End'.

So here they all are collected together in a single volume, the first steps in my career as a solo artist. SW – January 2014

(*) The B-side of the 'Cover Version IV' single 'The Unquiet Grave' is based on a 15th century English folk song of the same name, so is not strictly speaking an original composition.

Hand. Cannot. Erase.

27 February 2015

2 3 4 10 13 39

The fourth solo studio album is written from a female perspective, inspired by the case of Joyce Carol Vincent, where a woman living in a large city dies in her apartment and no one misses her for over three years, despite her having family and friends.

Note by Steven Wilson:

In the past I mostly resisted requests from record labels to compile or anthologise, but this time I enjoyed the challenge of trying to sequence an album that would act as a more easygoing introduction to my music. These are mostly the shorter song-based tracks (some represented by edits), so it's perhaps the ideal way to introduce a friend or partner to SW music without the more "difficult" stuff getting in the way. For once I have also given in to narcissism and put my face on the cover, without a gas mask or anything else obscuring it!

Note by Steven Wilson:

I'm very happy to support Record Store Day this year with an exclusive 12 inch vinyl based around a previously unreleased song recorded during the 'To The Bone' sessions. 'How Big The Space' has lyrics written by XTC's Andy Partridge, and was actually one of my favourite songs from the sessions, but it's more 60's psychedelic feel meant that it didn't quite fit with the other songs on the album. Side 1 of the 12 inch features two quite different mixes of the title song, while side 2 is a version of 'People Who Eat Darkness' from the album, but with Ninet Tayeb on lead vocals.

On the cover spine CAROL016LP is listed.

1. Twilight Zone (Live Soundcheck) 4:32

- Steven's Grammy nomination certificate and medal from 2011 for Grace For Drowning, which was nominated for best surround sound mix
- unique designer laptop bag as used in Eminent Sleaze video
- printed materials used in the Eminent Sleaze video
- 6 x laminated AAA passes for various tours between 2011-18
- Polaroids taken during THE FUTURE BITES cover shoot photo session
- an original drawing of Steven Wilson by German artist Hajo Mueller
- original lyric sheets for various songs (Count of Unease, Follower, Eminent Sleaze, Salvaging, Veneno Para Las Hadas, Personal Shopper, The Raven that Refused to Sing, and Dark Matter) written between 1996-2020. These are the actual sheets SW used when recording the songs and they contain his corrections, notes and rejected lines.

'The Tastemaker' is a song from the TFB album sessions that will never be released anywhere else. Only ONE copy of this single has been pressed!

'Twilight Zone' is a hand-made CDR of a one-off 2016 soundcheck performance by the SW band of a cover version never otherwise performed live.

Other Digital Releases

Well You're Wrong (Demo)

March 2006

That was the first thing that Steven Wilson put up on MySpace, around March 2006. A re-recorded and slightly extended version of this song later appeared on the 'Cover Version V' single.

Cut Ribbon (Demo 2002)

August 2006

Early demo of 'Cut Ribbon', which was leaked somehow. There is a later version from the 2010/2011 'Grace For Drowning' sessions with Gavin Harrison on drums (recorded in 2008)

1. Cut Ribbon

7:09

Note by Steven Wilson:

This is a pretty well developed SW demo for a project Mikael Akerfeldt (Opeth) and I have been planning to put together for a few years now. It has been widely bootlegged, but incorrectly attributed to Porcupine Tree, since it comes from the same period as several demos for the 'In Absentia' album circa 2002.

Collecting Space (Demo 2003)

August 2006

A proper version of this piece was released on the limited edition of 'Insurgentes', while this demo appears as an extra track on the 'Insurgentes' movie DVD.

Deadwing Theme

October 2006

Although this piece was written during the 'Deadwing' album sessions, it was not released on the album of the same name. It was officially released in 2010 as an extra track on the 'Insurgentes' movie DVD.

1. Deadwing Theme

1:47

Note by Steven Wilson:

This is a short piece written for the prospective soundtrack to the film Deadwing, which exists at present only as a screenplay written by SW and film-maker Mike Bennion. This piece is not related to the Porcupine Tree album of the same name.

Vapour Trail Lullaby (Demo 2000)

October 2006

This piece was later released in an extended version as a one track CD single (HDSWCD21) given away free with pre-orders of the 'Insurgentes' documentary DVD.

SW's former presence @ MySpace.com (MP3) [no longer available] ✕

1. Vapour Trail Lullaby

6:22

Note by Steven Wilson:

I found this on a CDR of demos from around 2000, and it's an early version of the song that was later recorded for the first Blackfield album with a much more stripped down piano and string quartet arrangement. Here I was obviously going for something a bit more epic (the full version lasts about 16 minutes, but this is the first 6). After Rush called their album 'Vapour Trails' I changed the title of the Blackfield version to just 'Lullaby'.

Tape Experiments 1985/86

02 September 2010

Originally planned as a free supplement for those who preorder the 'Insurgentes' movie DVD, SW decided to release the tracks on his Soundcloud page, later also released on vinyl by ToneFloat.

Steven Wilson on Facebook, 1 Sept 2010:

Due to some people being disappointed that I changed my mind about including archive experimental material on the free CD to be included with pre-orders of the Insurgentes DVD (in favour of a much more recent piece of music), I have instead uploaded an album's worth of this material to be downloaded for free from Soundcloud. 'Tape Experiments 1985-86' does what it says on the box. These are full resolution WAV files, and so of course reveal all the flaws of the original grimy cassettes they were taken from. Enjoy or endure!

Steven Wilson on Facebook, 8 Nov 2010:

Earlier this year I mentioned here on facebook an idea to release my mid 80's tape experiments on a CD to be given away with the Insurgentes DVD. However, when I came to listen to the stuff it was like lookin at a picture of myself as a teenager, complete with bad clothes and the haircut that time forgot! Instead I made the music available for free download on my Soundcloud page, and was pleasantly surprised by the positive response to it. Later on I was approached by several labels about releasing the music in physical form, but I still very reluctant to do so, despite the fact that bootleg CDRs were starting to appear in eBay. However, Charles at ToneFloat came up with the idea to make a vinyl only release, packaged in a style that is an homage to 70's bootlegs, as befitting the lo-fi cassette nature of the music, and I agreed to this proposal.

SW on Facebook, 21 Sep 2010:

WYNC radio has a song streaming on their website that I gave them as an exclusive for the show today. It was written earlier this year while I was developing material for my next solo project, but isn't going to make the cut for the record, so here it is instead. It's called Home in Negative, kinda mellow, kinda nice I think. (-:

4:47

Note by Steven Wilson:

These 5 songs were originally included as part of a special 3 disc hardback book edition of Insurgentes released on my own label Headphone Dust a few months prior to KScope issuing the standard version. I had around 25 songs in total from the recording sessions, several of which were dropped because they didn't measure up (some of the other leftover pieces are now released on the Insurgentes film DVD), but I felt these 5 songs were as good as the album material, so it wasn't for lack of quality that I left them off, more to do with context and not wanting the album to be too long as a listening experience. Instead they were included on a separate CD only available with the special edition (and later on vinyl releases).

The whole idea of the special edition was to experiment with doing something really special with the packaging that took advantage of the multi-media aspect of the project (film, photos, music), and to sell only online. They were very expensive to make and could only be printed as a one-off edition, so I had to guess at how many to make - even then I became so convinced that I wasn't going to be able to sell them, that I priced it such that I basically lost money with every copy sold!

Later on I found myself wondering if the small minority that still complained that they had been "ripped off" in only getting a CD, a CD EP, a DVD, and a ten by ten 128 page clothbound full colour book for their £34 were the same people that later sold their copy on eBay for 10 times what they paid for it. Anyway, I digress.... Here for those that missed out on the special edition, are the bonus Insurgentes songs in full resolution WAVs, enjoy! Best, SW

Note by Steven Wilson:

Written in 2001 for a planned metal style collaboration with Mikael Åkerfeldt, this song has been revisited several times since, but I could never really make it fit the style of whatever I was doing at the time. In the meantime the album with Mike finally happened, but in a completely different style to the album we planned 10 years ago (it's coming out in April). So finally here is the orphan song Cut Ribbon - this is the latest version from the 2010/2011 Grace For Drowning sessions. Gavin Harrison on drums (recorded in 2008), all other instruments SW.

Steven Wilson – The Official Fan App

18 October 2011

There was a Steven Wilson app for iPhone and iPod touch, which could be downloaded via the Apple iTunes store for free. It included the first official release of the track 'Cut Ribbon'. It was only available for iPhone, iPod Touch (although could also run on iPad). 'Harmony Corine (Acoustic)' is currently an app exclusive.

Required an internet connection to stream music.

- Exclusive audio and video content only available in the fan app
- Instant news and tour updates including photos & audio from the GFD tour
- Insurgentes and Grace For Drowning photo sessions
- Airplay enabled audio and video

Note by Steven Wilson:

The making of Grace For Drowning was a big artistic step forward for me - while it has its roots in the experimental rock music of the early 70's, it's also an album which could have only been made in the 21st Century. To this end we have also embraced the best that modern technology has to offer by making the album one of the first ever to be conceived specifically for Blu-ray, which allows much higher audio resolution as well as interactive visual elements. As a continuation of that philosophy this iPhone app allows fans to keep track of news and tour dates, but also access to audio and visual content, some of which is exclusive to the app (and more of which will be added as time goes on).

Note by Lasse Hoile:

GFD is probably the biggest project I've worked on, from the films to the images and all the different formats it was released in. We developed over 10 000 images knowing that none of the editions could contain even a fraction of the final result. It's been a great honor and pleasure to be part of this adventure with Steve and everyone else involved and I hope all will enjoy listening and looking at GFD for many years in the future. With this great looking app we are able to show everything we couldn't fit in the book or on the Blu-ray. Enjoy!

The Old Peace (with Mariusz Duda)

30 October 2014

In honour of poet and devoted music fan Alec Wildey—who died earlier this year at the age of 26 – 'The Old Peace' is a unique collaboration between Steven Wilson and Mariusz Duda (Lunatic Soul/Riverside) who have set one of Alec's poems to music. All profits go to raising money for cancer charities.

Words by Alec Wildey
Music by Mariusz Duda

Note By Steven Wilson (30 October 2014):

Myself and my friend Mariusz Duda have teamed up to record a song together, and for a very special reason.

Alec Wildey was a young fan who for several years had been passionate about our music, actively helping out with promotion as a leading member of the PT and SW street teams from the tender age of 17, and setting up a street team for Mariusz in 2010. Some of you will almost certainly have met Alec, as he attended many of our concerts. If you did you will have found him to be a sensitive, extremely intelligent and articulate young man. He was a devoted and enthusiastic music listener and movie watcher, as well as a self-published poet, with a very bright future ahead of him.

Unfortunately on Christmas Eve 2013 Alec learned he had a cancer of the lymphatic system, followed shortly afterwards by an additional diagnosis of liver cancer. He began a course of aggressive chemotherapy and radiation treatment, but alas to no avail. At the end of July when he understood he had only a short time left, he emailed me to ask if it was possible that his two favourite musicians could set one of his poems to music, a long held dream of his. I immediately agreed but told him I would make a deal with him - I would make it happen if he could hang on long enough to hear it. We even discussed the possibility of him playing drums on the song himself. Unfortunately he passed away only a few weeks later on 25th August at the age of just 26, and so the idea to record the song has now become about honouring Alec's memory and all too short life, as well as a form of tribute to him and his family. One of Alec's poems The Old Peace has been beautifully set to music by Mariusz and sung and performed by both of us. It is now available to download from Burning Shed for a modest sum in both high resolution FLAC and mp3, with 50% of the proceeds going to the medical centre that cared for Alec during his final months, and 50% going to other cancer support group charities. We would be happy if as many people as possible paid for the official download (so please don't share it or upload it to any other sites) in order to raise as much as we can to help others that find themselves in the same awful situation. The song will be available to download until the end of January 2015, after which all the proceeds will be paid over to the cancer support groups.

Note by Steven Wilson:

It's been one of my long held ambitions to score a movie and in a way I feel like I've done that now. After sequencing the tracks that Massimo selected it was surprising to me how much the soundtrack felt so cohesive, as if the music was written specifically for the project. You can make up your mind by listening to the soundtrack on streaming platforms from this Friday (01 December 2017).

See if you can identify all the original sources for the new soundtrack versions!

The soundtrack is comprised of 15 pieces of music adapted from my four albums, Insurgentes, Grace For Drowning, The Raven That Refused To Sing (And Other Stories) and Hand.Cannot.Erase., as well as pieces by my ambient/electronic project Bass Communion. All of the tracks were especially edited instrumental versions created exclusively for the game, including alternate versions of Routine, The Raven that Refused to Sing, Deform To Form A Star, and many others.

Anything But Me

12 May 2021

'Anyone But Me' was originally intended as the final track on 'The Future Bites', but didn't make the final cut of the album (actually the album was mastered and cut with the song in place). The delay in releasing the album (from June 2020 to January 2021) gave SW the opportunity for a rethink and he replaced it with the song 'Count Of Unease'.

1. Anyone But Me

3:53

Note by Steven Wilson:

This song was a casualty of COVID-19. It was originally the closing song on THE FUTURE BITES, the album was even mastered and cut with it in place, but the delay in releasing the album gave me the chance to re-evaluate and I decided to replace it with the more laid back and atmospheric COUNT OF UNEASE. I still love this song though. Lyrically it's about how it's now possible to present to the world a version of yourself via social media that may have no bearing on reality - photos of yourself in places you've never been, hanging out with friends you've never met. It's becoming more important to create the illusion of a desirable life on social media than it is to actually live it.

Directed by Lasse Hoile
Music by Steven Wilson

Insurgentes is a musical road movie that follows the making of Grammy™ nominated musician (and leader of British rock band Porcupine Tree) Steven Wilson 's solo record of the same name., and is a portrait of an increasingly rare artist who works with music and media out of love – and not for fame and fortune, persisting in making art on his own terms in a world where 'throw away' mentality is increasingly becoming the norm.

Insurgentes is also about music and the album as art form, and applying the same aesthetic vision through the writing, performance, production, artwork, lyrics, videos, and beyond. The film looks into the issues of creating, packaging, and marketing music in an era when iPods, mp3s and download culture are changing and eroding perceptions of exactly what an album is supposed to sound and look like.

Through travels to different cultures and continents, we meet with other personalities in the industry and hear different opinions on the current and future state of music.

Insurgentes also follows Steven back to his roots and upbringing, and what led to him becoming a musician, from humble beginnings in the suburbs of London to touring the world as a successful artist, working with many other established artists, and creating a lasting legacy of recorded work.

Routine

29 October 2015

Music video of 'Routine' (10:05).

Directed by Jess Cope

Note by Steven Wilson:

"Amongst the hundreds of songs I have written over the years, 'Routine' has a very special place. It's a deeply sad story of loss and denial, but at its conclusion the clouds lift and there is acceptance at least. Having worked with her on 3 previous videos, I knew as soon as I wrote it that it was perfect for Jess to do something amazing with. Even then nothing prepared me for the organic beauty and power of the film she made, a painstaking labour of love that took her months to produce. When we play the song live I look out into the audience and see people swept away with emotion at the combination of music and animation. To find poetry and beauty in sadness is a wonderful thing I think"

Pariah (Listening Video)

09 May 2017

Note by Steven Wilson:

After many months of writing and recording, I'm pleased to finally announce details of my new album To The Bone, and a major European tour in early 2018 which includes a return to many of my favourite venues, including London's prestigious Royal Albert Hall. For my North and South American fans, expect to see further tour news soon.

Also released today is the finished version of a track from the album 'Pariah', a song I wrote especially to be a duet with the wonderful Ninet Tayeb.

To The Bone is due to be released on 18th August but is available now to pre-order in a variety of formats, including a special deluxe hard back 120 page book edition, which includes an exclusive full length CD of demos and unused songs, and a one-sided 7 inch vinyl single of a bonus instrumental song from the album sessions. Neither of these will be available anywhere else.

My fifth record is in many ways inspired by the hugely ambitious progressive pop records that I loved in my youth (think Peter Gabriel's So, Kate Bush's Hounds of Love, Talk Talk's Colour of Spring and Tears for Fears' Seeds of Love). Lyrically, the album's eleven tracks veer from the paranoid chaos of the current era in which truth can apparently be a flexible notion, observations of the everyday lives of refugees, terrorists and religious fundamentalists, and a welcome shot of some of the most joyous wide-eyed escapism I've created in my career so far. Something for all the family!

Vermillioncore (Live At NSJ Festival 2016)

26 June 2017

Note by Steven Wilson:

Last summer I played with my band at the legendary North Sea Jazz Festival in The Netherlands. We only had a one hour slot in the middle of the afternoon, but still we had a lot of fun and received some good energy from the crowd, many of whom were new to the music. The show was broadcast a few days ago on the first anniversary of the original performance by Dutch digital Arts Channel NPO Cultura, and here you can watch Vermillioncore (4:59) taken from that broadcast.

Permanating (Listening Video)

30 June 2017

Music video of 'Permanating' (3:33) from the album 'To The Bone'.

Note by Steven Wilson:

'Permanating' represents a departure from the rest of the album and the more melancholic material I'm known for in that it's probably the most joyous piece of pure pop I've ever recorded. In my mind this is what ABBA and Electric Light Orchestra would sound like as produced by Daft Punk! While I expect it to create healthy debate amongst my listeners, it's one of the songs I'm most proud of on the new record because it's such a different approach for me, and I thrive from changing my sound and trying new things. Production of a video for the song is in progress, news on that soon. In the meantime, hope you enjoy!

Permanating

21 July 2017

'Permanating' (3:55) was directed by Andrew Morgan for Electric Light Studios.

Note by Steven Wilson:

"I'm very proud of the video for 'Permanating'. As soon as I wrote this song I had it in mind that Bollywood dancing would be the perfect accompaniment, such a joyous form of dance for what is probably the most joyous pop song I have ever come up with. I hope it will put a smile on your face as it does for me."

03 August 2017

Lyric video of Refuge (6:42) by Lasse Hoile.

Inspired by the plight of Syrian refugees, 'Refuge' builds from the hushed beauty and pathos of the song section to an instrumental apex in which Paul Stacey's guitar, Mark Feltham's harmonica and Steven Wilson's synth solo unite in epic glory, before dropping back down to a haunting aftermath. 'Refuge' is a powerfully intense and cinematic highlight from the album 'To the Bone'.

Live At HMV 363 Oxford Street, London

22 August 2017

During the official release day for 'To The Bone', SW was at HMV 363 Oxford Street, London to sign copies of the album. He also took the opportunity to perform 4 songs from the album in stripped down form for the people who attended, with Ninet Tayeb joining him for 2 of them. Crystal Spotlight were there to film it and you can watch the full unedited 30 minute performance here, complete with informalities, mistakes and guitar string breaks!

People Who Eat Darkness

31 October 2018

Music video for 'People Who Eat Darkness' (6:02)

Jess Cope, Director of 'People Who Eat Darkness':

Steven's song, 'People Who Eat Darkness' addresses the subject of terrorism and the uncomfortable thought that you could quite literally be living next door to a terrorist and never know until it was too late. Originally when we chatted about the concept, I thought I would tackle the subject head-on and do something quite hard hitting. But whilst I was midway through writing a narrative in which my main protagonist was constructing a home-made explosive device, the Manchester arena bombing happened, and it stopped me in my tracks. The video was specifically for Steven's show and I realised the perception of doing something so literal could backfire badly if a real attack took place somewhere while he was on tour. I still wanted to stick with the theme, but like all of my videos I aim to take a theme and twist it into something a little less "realistic and a bit more supernatural. So, terrorism turned into an alien invasion, something perhaps along the lines of 'The Faculty' meets 'Rear Window'. During my research I decided that the two-tone Hitchcock poster-style artwork would look awesome for the look of the film. The whole thing was animated and coloured digitally, but to avoid it being totally computer generated, I insisted that the artwork be hand drawn by the brilliant illustrator, Adam Oehlers".

The Same Asylum As Before

31 January 2019

Music video for 'The Same Asylum As Before' (5:12).

Note by Steven Wilson:

Lasse Hoile's brilliant video for 'The Same Asylum As Before' has only been viewable as part of the live 'To The Bone' concert experience until now, but with the tour finally coming to an end in a few weeks, the time has come to share it online, especially since it's been very popular and much requested. Lasse and the actors shot the video in sub-zero temperatures in Denmark in January 2018, so it sounds like it's a lot more fun to watch that it was to make. Enjoy!

Song Of Unborn

24 April 2019

Music video for 'Song of Unborn' (6:20)
Directed by Jess Cope

Note by Jess Cope:

I took Carl Sagan's quote, 'We are all made of star stuff' and based the film around that idea for Song of Unborn. Using abstract imagery and different styles of animation, the video represents the human form developing from the inside of its body instead of inside the womb. This is the first film that I have made with next to no narrative. I focused more on using the evolution of animation as a way to represent the evolving foetus in utero. The combination of space, sky, sea and fish just seemed to be the direction I wanted to take it. The paper cut out fish at the start represent sperm, the string rays are red blood cells through veins and the jellyfish are nerves. The whales represent the transition from gill-bearing aquatic fish that can only survive underwater to air breathing mammals that give birth to live young. It depicts the transition from a baby inside the mother's womb to the birth and its first breath. I enjoyed exploring new animation techniques and I am pretty pleased with the way this video turned out, but after experiencing the process of working with CGI I would undoubtedly stick to traditional, old school, hand made, in camera effects. My favourite scene is the space scene. I created it on a multiplane and poked millions of tiny holes in a piece of black wrap that sat at the back of the set. The space dust was created with talcum powder on different layers of glass and the planet/egg was made out of a gel ball that florists use. The fish were made out of card and painted with metallic paint to catch the natural light. By using a real camera zoom it gave the magical illusion of depth and space.

Stoneage Dinosaurs (Cardiacs Cover)

22 July 2020

Note by Steven Wilson:

I am deeply saddened to read of the passing of Tim Smith from Cardiacs today. Even though Tim had been ill for many years, it's still hard for me to think of him as gone, as his music made such a big impression on me, and continues to do so. He had one of the few truly unique sounds and musical personalities you could ever hope to hear, it was almost impossible to understand where his music came from and what his influences might have been. In that respect he was a true original, and like many other true originals he paid the price of being a cult artist, relatively under the radar for most of his career. But for those that 'got' Cardiacs they almost without exception went on to become their favourite band. A few years ago when Tim first became ill I contributed a cover version of one of his most beautiful compositions 'Stone Age Dinosaurs' to an album released to raise funds for his medical care, and I would like to share it with you here as my eulogy to Tim.

King Ghost (The Future Bites Sessions)

31 October 2020

Note by Steven Wilson:

Like most musicians I'm currently unable to tour or perform in front of a live audience, so instead I'm starting a live in the studio video series called 'The Future Bites Sessions', creating new stripped down versions of songs in my own studio. Appropriately for Halloween the first one is a performance of new single 'King Ghost' (3:58). Please feel free to suggest any songs you would like me to revisit in this way, it's going to be fun!

Steven Wilson & Jess Cope on 'King Ghost'

03 November 2020

Steven Wilson and Jess Cope discuss the new video for 'King Ghost'.

Collapse The Light Into Earth (The Future Bites Sessions)

06 November 2020

Note by Steven Wilson:

The second in 'The Future Bites Sessions' series is a version of 'Collapse The Light Into Earth' (4:04). This song was originally released as the closing track on Porcupine Tree's 2002 album 'In Absentia'. That version was written and mostly recorded in my home studio in 2001 during the immediate aftermath of 9/11, with Richard Barbieri adding to it later during the album sessions in New York. To date the song has never been performed live by either PT or my solo band, so I thought it would be a great choice to do in this format. I really hope you enjoy it, and please feel free to make suggestions of other songs you'd like to hear me do as part of the series.

Drown With Me (The Future Bites Sessions)

13 November 2020

Note by Steven Wilson:

The third song from 'The Future Bites Sessions' is 'Drown With Me' (3:37), performed with a drum machine, piano, and 2 acoustic guitars (one Nashville strung). Written in 2001, a version of the song was recorded the following year by Porcupine Tree during the 'In Absentia' sessions, but this session version is based on the original demo which has a different chorus. I'm not sure why I changed it at the time because in retrospect I like this chorus better. Both the original demo and the Porcupine Tree recording of the song are included on the recently issued deluxe edition of In Absentia, so you can listen and make up your own mind which is best!

Significant Other (The Future Bites Sessions)

20 November 2020

Note by Steven Wilson:

The fourth in session track is 'Significant Other' (3:43), one of my favourite songs from my first solo album 'Insurgentes'. This is another one that has never been performed live. Keep the suggestions coming!

Personal Shopper

27 November 2020

Official music video for 'Personal Shopper' (6:41).

Note by Steven Wilson:

The song 'Personal Shopper' sits somewhere between being a love-letter to shopping (which I love to do!) and the uneasiness I feel about the more insidious side of modern consumerism. Lucrecia's blackly comic video captures that dilemma perfectly.

Note by Lucrecia Taormina, Director:

The track is a social criticism of consumerism and how we fill our lives with unnecessary goods to feel important, special or loved. But the truth is, the feeling of unhappiness won't go away with the next pair of sick trainers. Those feelings will only go away when we look within, and if we don't... well, then we're going to end up with a lot of stuff around us, but still pretty empty. Luckily the track being 6 minutes gave me the opportunity to develop an interesting narrative. I wanted to create a fictional world in which people buy goods and the transaction would not only be money but also a part of their body, alluding to the concept of the more you look for answers outside, the more you disappear on the inside.

12 Things I Forgot (The Future Bites Sessions)

04 December 2020

Note by Steven Wilson:

The fifth in 'The Future Bites Sessions' series is my current single '12 Things I Forgot' (4:20). For this one I invited my buddy Gary Kemp of Spandau Ballet and A Saucerful of Secrets over to do a fantastic and soulful job on the harmony vocals, thanks Gary! Look out for some more guests on future session tracks.

Voyage 34 (The Future Bites Sessions)

11 December 2020

Note by Steven Wilson:

The latest 'The Future Bites Sessions' is one of my very earliest solo recordings. 'Voyage 34' (5:54) was released under the name Porcupine Tree way back in 1992, and at the time was one of the longest singles ever released at 30 minutes! This session version is much abbreviated, but look out for a more extended updating of Brian's 34th LSD trip on my tour next year.

Half-Light (The Future Bites Sessions)

19 December 2020

Note by Steven Wilson:

Today's session track 'Half-Light' (4:45) delves back to the music I wrote for 'Deadwing', the movie that never was (but that may be again), a love theme between the two main characters. It was replaced on the Porcupine Tree album of the same name by a group composition, but I regret consigning it to a B-side, as I feel it's one of my most beautiful songs.

The Last Great American Dynasty (Taylor Swift Cover) (The Future Bites Sessions)

31 December 2020

Note by Steven Wilson:

My final TFB session track of 2020 is something a bit different. To mark the end of the year I wanted to do a cover of someone else's song from 2020 rather than one of mine, and I've chosen one from Taylor Swift's fantastic 'Folklore' album. This is a story-telling song (3:40) with brilliant lyrics, and rather a lot of them. In fact it might be the most words I've ever had to sing in 3 and half minutes, which is why you'll see me reading them off a cheat-sheet!

I love how the song starts off in the past in third person but becomes first person towards the end as Taylor Swift herself enters the story. You can read all about it at

🔗 https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/The_Last_Great_American_Dynasty

My version is pretty faithful, maybe a bit too much, but in the spirit of the session concept it was learned and recorded quickly. Plus it just sounded so good the way she did it.

Man Of The People (Official Lyric Video)

26 January 2021

Note by Steven Wilson:

MAN OF THE PEOPLE is about the person who stands behind the disgraced politician, the religious leader that's been caught in a sex scandal. The wife, the girlfriend, the husband, the partner, whoever is the family, the children—the people that stand behind these figures that are disgraceful. The collateral damage. I pity these people sometimes.

Self (Official Video)

01 February 2021

Note by Steven Wilson:

SELF is about our new age of narcissism and self-obsession, one in which a human race that used to look out with curiosity at the world and the stars now spends much of its time gazing at a little screen to see themselves reflected back in the mirror of social media. In that sense everyone now can take part in the notion of celebrity, and has the potential to share their life with an invisible mass of people they will never meet. The video takes things further by exploring the idea that anyone can now project a version or "self" that has no bearing on reality, and by using only well known faces the deception is made transparent.

Note by Miles Skarin, Director:

In our early discussions about the Self video, we were talking about the concept of identity in the digital age, how your face is not only your key to a lot of the media you consume, it represents who you are - or who you pretend to be in your online personas. One of the most intriguing new developments in recent years have been the ability to create deepfakes, where a computer runs a machine learning algorithm to predict what one face would look like in another's pose. Anyone with the right tools and ability can now turn themselves into anyone else, so what does that mean for identity?

Personal Shopper (Nile Rodgers Remix)

31 March 2021

Note by Steven Wilson:

You can probably tell from 'Personal Shopper' that I grew up hearing a lot of disco music played in the Wilson house, including the classic Chic masterpieces, so it's an absolute thrill to have Nile stamp his legendary signature sound on the track.

Anyone But Me

12 May 2021

Note by Steven Wilson:

This song was a casualty of COVID-19. It was originally the closing song on THE FUTURE BITES, the album was even mastered and cut with it in place, but the delay in releasing the album gave me the chance to re-evaluate and I decided to replace it with the more laid back and atmospheric COUNT OF UNEASE. I still love this song though. Lyrically it's about how it's now possible to present to the world a version of yourself via social media that may have no bearing on reality - photos of yourself in places you've never been, hanging out with friends you've never met. It's becoming more important to create the illusion of a desirable life on social media than it is to actually live it.

Personal Shopper (Biffy Clyro Remix) (Official Audio)

11 June 2021

Official audio video for 'Personal Shopper (Biffy Clyro Remix)' (4:33)

Note by Steven Wilson:

PERSONAL SHOPPER has already been chosen by numerous artists as the TFB track they wanted to remix and it's been fantastic to hear all the different interpretations. Now Biffy Clyro have come with perhaps the most radical reinvention of the song by taking the mainly electronic track and reimagining it as a huge guitar anthem, which just blew me away. Perhaps one for those that missed hearing the guitars in my recent music!

Various Artists

Dreams Of Reality

1981

This compilation contains the first song SW released under his own name. 'Remembrance' (4:15) is compromised mostly of Farfisa organ with little guitar, intercut with samples recorded from a police scanner. It is an indicator of the direction that SW would take in the future, particularly with his project Altamont.

UK Broken Skull Tapes – SKULL 002

Danza De La Vida

2007

The collection entitled 'Danza de la Vida' is a limited edition of 500 copies and focuses on experimental song based pieces, including SW's 'Unquiet Grave' from the 'Cover Version IV' CD single. Also features tracks by Andrew Liles, O Yuki Conjugate, Roedelius, and Blaine L. Reininger.

Pat Mastelotto – Steven Wilson P@ Remix EP 1: 2009 Salvaging

05 February 2021

Bandcamp only release by American rock drummer and record producer Pat Mastelotto consisting of six remixes of the track 'Salvaging'.

Pat Mastelotto @ Bandcamp

A few days before Christmas 2010, with the house full of family, I got a wonderful email from Steven Wilson. I hardly knew Steven, met him via email last year when I did a few tracks for his No Man project with Tim Bownes (Tim appears on one of my Tuner Cds) asking if I would do a remix / reconstruction of a track from his forthcoming debut solo album.

He sent me a link to the tracks and said pick one—I did—but Steven replied that as it was the only track already remixed if I might choose another. I ended up picking three songs and he sent me his stems (a variety of elements, some sub mixed). For a muso guy like me this really did feel like Christmas!

I wondered if I could enlist some pals but felt I better ask before sharing any unreleased material.

SW replied "I don't want the vocals removed or just flown over a one note rhythm track with the chord changes removed, which is the usual 'dance' mix approach. I'm not looking for that kind of mix at all - more like how you would reinterpret the song if you'd been producing it. And keep it twisted!"

Wow this is getting better with every email!

I decided to really go nuts and try a method that Markus and I had used on some of our Tuner records. . We basically superimpose a new meter. Not a poly-rhythm but a new tempo. . I don't mean speeding up or slowing down the track, although I've done that as well- but our method involves something more like using quintuplets, or septuplet (or anything) to find a new rate of tempo. The basic math we use is to take the 8th note as a common denominators (I think most rock music these days really is in 8/8)- so for instance if the 4/4 song was at 100bpm I would divide that by 8 to determine the 8th note was worth 12.5. . then multiply this back by the new meter, let's say 6/8 – and get 75. . make sense? I had a gas doing this and quickly found so many great ideas developing, that I was dumb enough to set my sights on doing three completely different mixes of each of the three songs. . So I could surprise SW with 9 remixes. . As Andy Partridge once explained to me "What's the use in having a top if you can't go over it"

So after this long-winded introduction I'll use the track 'Salvager' as an example--- Steven's version was at 124bpm (although to my ears it travels in half time and is really more like 62bpm). I felt the lyrics were far apart in Steven's version so by slowing down the track I could bring the vocals closer together- I was not planning to move Steven's vocals (although I moved many of the vocals on other remixes). Back to the math--- dividing 124bpm by 8 (remember the 8th note rules in rock) I found its value to be 15.5. . Then multiple by 5 and use 77.5 as my tempo in 5/4, --and multiply by 7 and get 108.5 . Next was back to sending my pals guides and sub mixes in these new tempos. Big thanks to all the musicians who helped: Markus Reuter, Roine Stolt, Jonas Ringold, Sirene, Pamela Kurstin, Cenk Erolglu, Bill Munyon, Bart Lams and Deb.

Steven released a few of these mixes in various ways, EP, downloads etc and if you can sniff around you can find them. But now he says it's OK to place them all here in one place.

And I hope the math might inspire a new way to tackle a track. And I'll bet the real masters have known this for ages.

Storm Corrosion

STORM CORROSION is the long-discussed and highly anticipated collaboration between two of the current music scene's most innovative and multi-talented artists; Porcupine Tree's Steven Wilson and Mikael Åkerfeldt of Opeth. The pair have been friends since the early '00s, when Wilson co-produced Opeth's revered 'Blackwater Park' album.

Over the years, they'd often spoken of working on a project together, but it wasn't until recently that they managed to make something happen, when Mikael flew over to visit Steve in the UK and they ended up in Wilson's home studio throwing ideas around. That visit was the nascence of a whole self-titled album, written and produced by the pair and mixed by Wilson.

The sound of STORM CORROSION can best be described as enchanting, orchestral, ambient, epic (half the album's tracks clock in around the 10 minute mark) and nothing short of surprising to the new ear. However, the musicians' respective fanbases will be primed to appreciate the new output, with Wilson's recent solo album, 'Grace For Drowning' and Opeth's 'Heritage' having brought them to a logical place to understand STORM CORROSION.

This eponymous collection is almost viewed as one side of a musical triangle.

The coming to fruition of a meeting of musical minds that has had fans of adventurous, progressive and heavy music shivering with anticipatory excitement for many years, Storm Corrosion is unlike anything you have ever heard. A collaboration between two of the modern era's greatest and most revered artists – Steven Wilson, prolific sonic polymath and frontman with UK prog standard bearers Porcupine Tree, and Mikael Åkerfeldt, leader and chief creative driving force for Swedish progressive metal legends Opeth – it takes the listener on an unprecedented journey into realms yet undiscovered.

"We never discussed what we were going to do," recalls Åkerfeldt. "I went down to hang out at Steven's house, and we drank wine and talked about music, but neither of us had anything prepared. We wrote the song 'Drag Ropes' [Storm Corrosion's opening track] that first night, and we both thought it was pretty cool. We'd never heard anything like it and it doesn't really sound like our bands. We found our own niche, right then and there."

"It was special, different and intriguing," agrees Wilson. "We ran in the opposite direction of the idea of a prog metal supergroup that people had been talking about and expecting from us. It was a chance to delve into more experimental ideas. We were being wilfully self-indulgent in the best possible way, making music to please ourselves. There's something wonderfully pure and liberating about that you can hear that in these songs."

Wilson has mixed and contributed to several Opeth albums over the years, of course, but this is the first time that he and Åkerfeldt have written music together. Recorded at Wilson's No Man's Land studio in leafy Hertfordshire, England, Storm Corrosion is a six-song exploration of the outer limits of these two artists' febrile creativity. As with their individual recent works – Wilson's 'Grace For Drowning' and Opeth's 'Heritage' in particular – which have challenged their respective fan bases and added new, vibrant colours to once familiar aural palates, this album is an exercise in total musical freedom, wherein anything is possible and ideas are snatched from the ether and moulded into something utterly new, beguiling, disturbing, and otherworldly. From the sprawling, multi-faceted dynamic splurge of 'Drag Ropes' and the unsettling sweep of title track through to the fragile menace of the closing 'Ljudet Innan' (which means "ancient music" in Swedish), Storm Corrosion is an epic, disorientating trip.

"You can hear it in Opeth and in my music, the idea of taking something beautiful and destroying it," explains Wilson. "We have both always loved the idea of discord, of beauty, and ugliness side by side. Without being too pretentious, that's what life is like, so you hear a lot more of that coming out in Storm Corrosion. It's heavy, but without the use of the metal vocabulary. You can hear that on 'Grace For Drowning' and on 'Heritage' too. So I think, in many ways, this is the completion of a trilogy."

Although manifestly conceived in the grand, esoteric tradition of records like Talk Talk's 'Spirit Of Eden' and Scott Walker's 'The Drift', Storm Corrosion is unmistakably a work of intense originality and one that has grown organically from a process that has plainly thrilled its creators.

"It was very much a 50/50 effort and very easily achieved," states Åkerfeldt. "We just sat down, started from scratch and created it all from nothing. There's some beautiful music on there but it's a demanding record. If you're doing other shit as you listen to it, it's going to pass by like elevator muzak. You really have to sit down and pay attention! If you allow it to sink in, it could be a life companion..."

Anyone who has followed the careers of Wilson and Åkerfeldt should already be prepared to embrace the unexpected as their artistic sensibilities fully collide for the first time, but both men are resigned to the fact that Storm Corrosion is a deep and daring piece of work that will simply not strike a chord with every Opeth or Porcupine Tree fan. This is something else, something other...and it's truly extraordinary.

"For me, self-indulgence is one of the fundamental things about being an artist," Wilson concludes. "Do not make music or art to please other people. If you do, you've stopped being an artist and you've become an entertainer. This is a very cinematic, impressionistic and immersive record. We just got together and it poured out of us. With this record you're entering into a very unusual and unfamiliar sonic universe and that's a very exciting thing to be part of."

Repentance – Vocals

Steven Wilson appears on 'Repentance', a track about regrets for the things you've done that maybe hurt others, and the need to apologize for those things. And although Dream Theater are very good friends of Steven Wilson, he is not a very big fan of their music. So he contributed an apology to the track for being negative in the press about their music.

Waiting For The Band (Steven Wilson Remix)

10:37

Note by Steven Wilson:

I'm very happy to announce the digital release of my 11 minute remix of Gary Kemp's 'Waiting For The Band' today. The original track is from Gary's brand new album out on Columbia this week Insolo. The song has a wonderful sense of nostalgic melancholy about it, so I took that atmosphere and ran with it over the extended version. The mix is also very fortunate to feature Mike Garson contributing piano, not only for his beautiful playing, but also because Mike was the keyboard player in the David Bowie band show Gary saw in 1973 that served as the inspiration for the song. Thanks to Gary for the invitation to do this and I hope you enjoy!

IOKWIB (I Only Know What I Believe)

'I Only Know What I Believe' is a timelapse showreel by Grant Wakefield, a UK film director who directed the No-Man video 'Whereever There Is Light', 'Litany' from the SW DVD 'Get All You Deserve' and who was responsible for the timelapse camera on the Porcupine Tree video 'Time Flies'.

The title is taken from the last justification of Tony Blair for attacking Iraq when all prior arguments had been discredited. Music used with very kind permission of Steven Wilson ('The 78') from the deluxe edition of his album INSURGENTES.

(*1) 2016 reissue notes taken from the SW HQ website:

The opportunity has been taken to bring the new edition of 'Aqualung' in line, and also to make some corrections and improvements:

- all the remixes are now presented as they left my studio, with no additional mastering
- there are 3 additional surround sound mixes that were not included on the 2011 release: 'Just Trying To Be', 'Wond'ring Aloud, Again', and 'Wind Up (Early Version)'
- a number of audio glitches on the original edition have been corrected
- the original stereo mixes of 'Life Is A Long Song' and 'Up The 'Pool' have been added to the bonus material

Steven Wilson did a new stereo and 5.1 remix for the 40th Anniversary Edition of 'WarChild', the seventh studio album by Jethro Tull from 1974. It represented a radical departure from the previous year's 'A Passion Play'. Developing out of an ambitious project involving a film, a soundtrack and conventional album, eventually only the latter appeared.

This celebration of Jethro Tull's tenth album follows a similar pattern to previous reissues, with the first disc containing a Steven Wilson remix followed by some "associated recordings" including the previously unreleased 'Old Aces Die Hard' and 'Working John, Working Joe'. CD2 and CD3 offer 22 track live tracks, recorded on the 'Songs From The Wood' Tour across two American dates, remixed to stereo by Jakko Jakszyk. The first DVD contains a 5.1 surround sound mix (DTS and Dolby 5.1) and 96/24 LPCM stereo versions of the both the original and Steven Wilson remixed version of 'Songs From The Wood'. This DVD also features selected associated tracks, as well as various quad mixes and flat transfers. The other DVD contains video footage from that Maryland gig of 21 November 1977. These visuals apparently come directly from the film that was played on the big screens in the venue. The audio has been mixed to stereo and 5.1.

Initial copies of the DVD/Blu-Ray had a mono mix instead of Steven Wilson's 2014 Stereo Mix. Steven Wilson said on www.superdeluxeedition.com that "there are issues with the transfers of both the stereo and the 5.1 mixes. The issues with the 5.1 are less obvious, but the bottom line is that it does not sound as it should". The faulty disc was replaced on demand by Universal Music some month after the initial release.

Prophecy

28 October 2013

Prophecy is the 2013 studio album from Solstice, one of the leading lights of the 1980s UK Progressive scene. The CD features three bonus tracks ('Find Yourself' (6:16), 'Return Of Spring' (7:26) and 'Earthsong' (6:38) comprising early material from their very first album 'Silent Dance', which were mixed by long-time fan Steven Wilson.

UK Esoteric Antenna – EANTCD 1024

Bonus Tracks (Steven Wilson Remixes):

Find Yourself
Return Of The Spring
Earthsong

Mixed by Steven Wilson

Taken from the booklet:

Steven remixed these three songs from the original 'Silent Dance' 8 track tapes, recorded in 1984 by Nigel Mazlyn Jones at Isle Of Light Studios, Cornwall.

As with all his superb remix work Steven's approach is to remain true to the original. He avoids reinterpretation or overt enhancement in favour of sensitive use of technology (and, of course, a great set of ears) to best realise the artist's original intentions.

Note by Tim Bowness:

I hope you're all keeping safe during what is undoubtedly a difficult period for everybody. This seemed like an appropriate time for a giveaway.

The Other Side is taken from the sessions for my forthcoming solo album (which may or may not be called Late Night Laments and may or may not be released sometime before 2054).

While other material on the album is brand new, this song originates from 1986 and marked the first collaboration with my future Plenty bandmate Brian Hulse. It is not intended to be on the final release.

The song - which has been wholly re-recorded and partially re-written - was mixed by Steven Wilson on 19th March 2020.

Ask who were Porcupine Tree ... Here is a first answer to the question: finally in a book the story of a legendary band that has been able to create, in spite of some detractors, a unique sound that has influenced the psychedelic and progressive rock of the last twenty-five years. An adventure that began within the walls of a studio in Hemel Hempstead that led them to become a cult object among their fans up to the sold out audiences of the Radio City Music Hall in New York and the Royal Albert Hall in London. But this book is also a small guide to listening to their records. And the genuine story of their lives by those who were there, saw them, experienced them and met them, the memory of fabulous nights in clubs that may no longer exist. In short, it is the cult of the Porcupine Tree ... But who were the Porcupine Tree really?

Guy M Tkach / Peter M Sieker – Steven Wilson Footprints Volume I

05 March 2021

'Footprints I', the first of a planned trilogy documenting the art of Steven Wilson in the studio and on stage, is a richly detailed and lavishly illustrated encyclopaedia. Guided with the assistance and contribution from the artist himself, this first compendium offers an overview of Wilson's prodigious musical development through the steadily growing success of Porcupine Tree and their subsequent legacy.

UK GP Publishing London – 978-1527276840

1 191 pages

Each chapter consists of an oral history, heavily informed with contemporary quotes from the artist and his associates. An extensively vetted timeline follows, populated by an exhaustive database of printed and digital media, coupled with thousands of visual contributions and artefacts from artistic collaborators, designers, photographers and collectors. However, the history is only half the story as Footprints is supplemented by what is unquestionably the most exhaustively researched discography, accompanied by multiple illustrations of each entry.

The Footprints trilogy has been created by fans for fans. It has been designed to provide a richly detailed overview of the incredibly varied and extensive work of Steven Wilson. Readers can expect to discover new details about releases and their historical context as well as accounts of live performances. Each volume of Footprints is an indispensable guide not only for those that hoard, collect, file and index, but for those who catalogue, preserve and amass as well!

Rumours/Misinformation

Pride Of Passion – Pride Of Passion

1985

Demo cassette by New Wave/AOR band Pride Of Passion. The band later change their name to Blazing Apostles and alter their lineup and approach, finally coming to an end in 1987.

UK Not On Label (Pride Of Passion Self-released) – PASS 001

SW plays under the pseudonym 'Nigel Child' on two releases.

This is in fact not a pseudonym for SW. Nigel Child was the guitar player for the band Pride of Passion with whom SW was the keyboard player for a few months in 1987 (although he never recorded with them).
On YouTube you can find two live videos ('And You hurt' and 'All My Life') from the Blazing Apostles (formerly Pride Of Passion) from a concert at the Mean Fiddler from 1987 with SW on keyboards.

The Jabberwockies – The Jabberwockies

1987

THE JABBERWOCKIES were born out of Alan Duffy's and Limo's heads to re-create the visions of Marc Bolan, Syd Barrett, the ISB and Arthur Lee.

UK Acid Tapes – TAB 043

The tape contains, amongst other tracks, 'Nine Cats', 'Small Fish' and 'The Joke's On You', the lyrics of these tracks were also used on songs by Porcupine Tree and Karma.

SW did not contribute any music to this release.

Saro Cosentino – Ones And Zeros

1997

Solo album by Saro Cosentino an Italian composer and musician. A large number of guest musicians are represented on the album, such as Tim Bowness, Peter Hammill, Trey Gunn und David Rhodes (Peter Gabriel).

UK Resurgence – RES 129CD

SW is sometimes credited as one of the engineers on this album, but doesn't remember doing anything, except setting up a microphone to record some Tim Bowness vocals for the track 'Days Of Flaming Youth' (4:58).

Saro Cosentino – Ones And Zeros Reloaded

Remastered reissue of 'Ones And Zeros' with a slightly different tracklist by Saro Cosentino an Italian composer and musician. A large number of guest musicians are represented on the album, such as Tim Bowness, Peter Hammill, Trey Gunn und David Rhodes (Peter Gabriel).
